City Eyes Free Buses, . . . If Gov't Will Help

Victoria is considering a free bus service for the downtown area this summer but transportation committee chairman Bill McElroy wants the province to pick up 50 per cent of the cost.

"It will cost about $70,000 to run the service for three months," he said.

"I think this is more than the city can afford."

He said a free bus service between The Bay and the legislature could become the park-and-ride system the provincial government has been advocating for its own employees.

"We could share the system and split the costs."

The bus could be used by shoppers and civil servants could park near The Bay and ride the bus to the legislature.

The proposal has yet to come before council, McElroy said, but he said he hopes to see a free bus service in operation by month's end.

At present, there are four options the city can discuss.

They are:

—A free bus jointly financed by the city and the provincial government.

—A subsidy to B.C. Hydro to let shoppers come downtown free from any route during shopping hours.

—Doing nothing.

McElroy said it is unlikely the city will sit back and do nothing because downtown traffic has just about neared the saturation point.

He said the city can handle no more than 200,000 vehicle trips per day and last year it had already reached 185,000.

"It is clear we are at or near the limit and we must either widen the streets or reduce the number of cars."

Expansion of the bus service is the cheaper alternative, he said.

Unfortunately, a free bus service over the Christmas shopping period was unsuccessful.

"The downtown merchants were supposed to handle the advertising," he said.

"They did very little. A service like this has to be well advertised if it's going to work."

FARES RISING 13.5%

Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. will raise fares on scheduled runs an average 13.5 per cent on July 15, general manager Jack Thomas said today.

He said this will be the first increase since 1976.

The airport service fare will be raised from $3 to $3.50, parcel express will go up 12.3 per cent and charter service, 12.5 per cent.

He said the new rates will still be less than other transportation services.

As an example, he said, the fare Victoria to Duncan will be $2.90, compared to the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway's $4.15.

And while a Greyhound trip between Vancouver and Seattle costs 7.7 cents per mile, his new fares will be seven cents per mile.

Housewife Salary Impossible

OTTAWA (CP) — The government cannot afford to pay every Canadian housewife a salary, even though she does work worth an average of $187.32 for a 49-hour week, concludes a report released Monday.

The report, Five Million Women: A Study of the Canadian Housewife, was presented to the federal Advisory Council on the Status of Women by its author, Monique Proulx, a council researcher.

More study is needed on the whole question of work in the home, says the report. But any formula for payment should take into account family income and whether or not the homemaker has children.

A change in attitudes toward women's role is needed, says the report.

Jobless Remain At Record High

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment rate for May, adjusted for seasonal variations, remained unchanged from the previous two months at a post-1930s high of 8.6 per cent of the work force, Statistics Canada reported today.

This was despite a cutback of 66,000 in the number of unemployed during the month to an actual level of 933,000, the report said.

And in British Columbia, unemployment rose to eight per cent last month from 7.7 per cent in April.

As in the past, Newfoundland had the highest provincial unemployment rate. It had 17.9 per cent of its work force jobless, up from 16.3 per cent in April and the highest rate this year.

But there was an improvement in the other Atlantic provinces.

The number of unemployed peaked at 1,045,000 in March, before falling to 999,000 in April. In May a year ago, there were 824,000 jobless.

The actual jobless rate in May was 8.4 per cent, down from 9.3 per cent in April but well above the 7.7 per cent actual rate in May last year.

The number of people working was up to 10,118,000 last month from 9,752,000 in April. A year ago, there were 9,822,000 working.

Job opportunities for men improved slightly in May, but for women unemployment rates rose. The jobless rate for men aged 15 to 24 eased to 15.8 per cent from 16.1 per cent in April, while for men 25 and over it was unchanged at 5.4 per cent.

But for women in the 15-to-24 age group, unemployment increased to 14.2 per cent in May from 13.4 per cent in the previous month, and for women 25 and over it rose to eight per cent from 7.8 per cent.

Unemployment rates, seasonally adjusted, fell in six provinces in May. But the rates rose in four others, including the industrial provinces of Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec that have the largest provincial work forces, as well as in Newfoundland.

Students seeking temporary work started coming into the work force during May, and the statistics confirm that they face a tough task finding work this summer.

From an estimated student work force in May of 656,000, Statistics Canada says 97,000 who wanted jobs could not find them. That is a 14.8-per-cent unemployment rate, up from 13.8 per cent among students in May last year.

Today's statistics are the second set of figures released since the federal budget of April 10 which contained an announcement of cuts in provincial retail sales taxes.

BEEF UP 43% IN ONE YEAR

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian consumers this year are paying 43.5 per cent more for beef than a year ago, a monthly survey of retail prices in 12 cities by the federal Anti-Inflation Board shows.

Meanwhile, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture said Monday in its monthly Ontario Farm Price Index that Ontario cattlemen are receiving 50.8 per cent more for their beef than they did a year ago.

The AIB survey said retail beef prices increased by 13.5 per cent in the four weeks before May 19. The farm price index covers prices farmers received until the end of May.

The AIB predicts "further substantial increases" in beef prices during the next few years as the number of cattle available for slaughter continues to decline.

Hotels Welcome Pub Plan

A number of hotel beer parlors are interested in a provincial government suggestion that they convert to pubs in order to remain open during the current beer drought, a spokesman for the B.C. Hotels Association said today.

Executive vice-president Lloyd Manuel said in an interview from Vancouver that the conversion idea is a good one.

He said those that have already switched to pub status allowing them to sell beer as well as hard liquor have had great success.

Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair said Monday that Vic Woodland, general manager of the liquor control and licensing branch is "trying to work on a scheme with some of the hotel beer parlors whereby he would allow them over a period of time, let's say six months or so, to convert to the hotel pub licence

Parents Journey To View Bodies

Times News Services

VILLE MARIE, Que. — Grief—stricken parents journeyed through the night to this Lake Timiskaming resort city today for the task of identifying the bodies of the young victims of a weekend canoeing disaster.

Twelve students aged 12 to 16 years, and a 21-year-old instructor died when a violent storm Sunday sent waves on the wilderness lake crashing onto their canoes. Eighteen others — 15 boys and three teachers — miraculously survived.

Relatives gathered in a small civic centre to greet surviving students and teachers from the school in the Toronto suburb of Claremont that stressed challenging boys to their physical and mental endurance peaks and "a sense of adventure."

The tragedy occurred Sunday after a group of 27 boys, aged between 10 and 15, and four teachers from St. John's School of Ontario began canoeing up Lake Timiskaming, about 370 kilometres northwest of Ottawa. Police said the 18 survivors were found on the western shore of the lake Monday and were in good condition after being treated for shock.

This morning, as the skies cleared and cold winds fanned the lake on the Quebec-Ontario border, police began a helicopter ferry service to bring the victims and survivors from the remote hunting lodge where they were kept overnight.

News of the tragedy came Monday morning after a helicopter pilot on a routine flight over the lake noticed an overturned canoe, with the bodies of a boy and an adult floating tied to it.

Gary Smith, 28, of Trans-Quebec Helicopters then spotted three more bodies and two other overturned canoes through the heavy fog. He got in touch with police, who organized a search party for the survivors.

Police said the expedition set off in four 22-foot cedar canoes, laden with food and baggage, for Moosonee, Ont., about 350 kilometres north of here, near James Bay.

U.S., CANADIAN DOLLARS FALLING

The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows against the Japanese yen in Tokyo today and London Monday, and registered broad losses in other foreign-exchange trading overseas and in New York.

The Canadian dollar also lost more than a quarter of a cent in New York money markets Monday in the wake of the biggest jump in the wholesale price index in more than a year. The dollar closed at 89.06 U.S. cents, down from Friday's final price of 89.33 U.S. cents.

At noon today, the Canadian dollar was up 1-20 at 89.11 cents U.S.

It's a Tiff Over Beauty

That seems to be the lesson in the tiff between Victoria and Transport Canada over the new Canadian Coast Guard base being built on the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

City officials say the plans for the second phase of the project, a 30,000-square-foot warehouse, are not acceptable. And city planning director Geoff Greenhalgh has labelled the building an unattractive tin shed.

Transport Canada official Stephen Rybak, however, responded in a letter to the Times recently, stating: "The warehouse to be constructed is a properly engineered, steel-clad, energy efficient building. It is an enhanced industrial building of a quality and finish superior to that required of the industrial zoning of the site; the finish would, in fact, comply with residential requirements."

Rybak added that the Coast Guard is conscious of the importance of the site, at the entrance to the Inner Harbor, and wants to ensure the base blends into the over-all appearance of the area.

Rybak's arguments have failed to impress Greenhalgh.

He said Monday that Transport Canada has yet to submit any plans meeting approval of the city's advisory design panel.

Steel-clad or not, he said, the Coast Guard warehouse has been rejected by the

MANDARINS GET RAISE

OTTAWA (CP) — The 2,000 highest-ranking federal public servants will immediately get $2,400 across-the-board salary increases, Treasury Board President Robert Andras announced Monday.

PM Serves Notice

OTTAWA (TNS) — Prime Minister Trudeau has bluntly served notice on Canada's provincial leaders he intends to push through major constitutional changes in areas of "exclusive" federal power with or without their approval. See story on Page 7.

TANKS SPILL OIL

TOKYO (Reuter) — More than 1,000 workers were trying today to prevent oil spilled in Monday's earthquake from spreading down the Pacific coast and causing an environmental disaster.

More than one million gallons of oil spilled into the ocean from giant oil tanks that ruptured during the major earthquake, officials said.

The quake, one of the most serious in Japan since the Second World War, killed 21 people in Sendai, a city 300 kilometres northeast of Tokyo, and injured about 350.

It also caused widespread damage to houses, bridges and roads.

The tremors split open three oil tanks containing 19 million gallons of oil at a beachside storage depot. Most of the oil was trapped behind a restraining wall, but some of it spewed into the sea.

The earthquake cut gas supplies to Sendai and parts of the city were without water.

It's Gold . . and It's Here!

Eureka! It's gold — and smack in the middle of downtown Victoria!

Paint your wagon, sharpen your pickaxe and head for them thar parking lots, civic squares and boulevards to beat the Great Victoria Gold Rush of '78.

It's easy to make fun of anyone claiming to have made a bonanza find in the heart of the city, but to Victoria resident Robert (Bev) Hopton it's no laughing matter.

Amid bizarre echoes of Klondike days, Hopton walked into the Times newsroom this morning and announced — apparently in all seriousness — that he has found gold almost within a stone's throw of City Hall.

What's more, he's confident that it's an extremely rich deposit which would yield thousands of dollars' worth of gold per ton of ore, enough to justify the cost of moving buildings if necessary.

Hopton, of 208—1044 Balmoral, a 66-year-old retired logger and mill worker who has been an off-and-on prospector for 40 years, said for obvious reasons he can't identify the exact location but it is on city property.

And he wants to talk to Victoria Mayor Mike Young about the possibility of extracting the yellow stuff, which could make the city enormously wealthy.

He said the area of the find is "hundreds of feet long and wide," although the really rich streak is only about a foot wide along a fault line.

CARROT-STICK EXAM GRADING CHARGED

Trustee Wants Uniformity

Grades are being used by teachers in the Greater Victoria school district to reward or punish students, Trustee John Young charged Monday.

Young said the absence of district-wide standards means teachers are free to use whatever guidelines they want when grading students.

Some teachers are handing out high marks to reward good behavior and low marks as punishment for bad behavior, he said.

When school superintendent Allan Stables told trustees he hasn't heard of the practice, Young said he isn't surprised.

"The district superintendent doesn't hear about a lot of things that are going on in the schools," Young said.

He said some schools also make it a practice to fail students who don't pass final examinations even if the students have kept a passing grade all year.

Trustee Peter Dorazio challenged him to name the schools and Young said he would do so during the in-camera session.

Young called for a promotion policy to cover the entire district and recommended one set of guidelines to allocate grades on the basis of achievement rather than behavior or a student's attendance record.

"Another canoe went to the rescue, but also turned over, and the same thing happened to the third."

The fourth canoe managed to take the survivors to shore, but was unable to go out again because of the high winds.

Coroner Leonard Julien of Rouyn, Que., said the victims appeared to have been in the water about 12 hours before they drowned.

Dr. Julian said all the victims were wearing "good life jackets . . . attached to the neck and stomach," and that autopsies performed on about seven victims showed they did not die of exposure as had been speculated earlier.

He said they drowned despite wearing the life jackets after taking in water because "there were very, very high waves" on the lake at the time.

In Toronto, a spokesman for the weather office said today a warning of a storm Sunday morning was issued just hours before the expedition set off. The spokesman said that when severe thunderstorms crossed the lake winds were estimated at between 60 and 100 kilometres an hour.

"I was very upset," said conservation officer Richard Belisle.

"The bodies were lined up on the dock. There were 11 children about 10 years old.

"They were very upset and badly bitten by mosquitoes and black flies. But they didn't cry. They had courage."

Survivors of the accident were subdued when flown out of a remote outfitting camp today.

"I've done enough paddling," Robin Jensen, 13, said. "I'll never go on another canoe trip again."

"Some birthday present," said 12-year-old Christopher Suttaby, who will be 13 on Wednesday. When he was brought to the lodge, he had written into its guest book: "It was the best present the Lord could ever give."

to allow them to serve hard liquor."

Some hotel beer parlors have been closing down and laying off staff because of the beer shortage caused by a lockout at B.C. breweries.

Mair said if the parlors do convert to pubs, they would have to limit their seating to 125 patrons.

Manuel said many beer parlors have run out of draught beer and he estimates the supply will be depleted by the end of the week.

Meanwhile, striking workers at the Carling O'Keefe brewery in Vancouver rejected an employers' offer Monday to lift lockouts at four other B.C. breweries if they returned to work.

George Franklin, chairman of the union negotiating committee at Carling's, said the union members won't go back to work until they have signed a memorandum of agreement.

Eric Harris, of the Brewery Employers' Labor Relations Association, said fresh negotiations could take place once production resumed.

Re-Election

Neil Hindle has won re-election as business agent for the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Local 191. He was opposed by Grenville Young.

In the only other contested position on the executive, Robert J. Adam, was returned as vice-president, beating out a challenge from Dave Higgins.

Local president Darryl Walker was returned by acclamation as were trustees A. J. Clark, G. D. Boyd and F. R. Blackley and inspector C. W. Kaey.

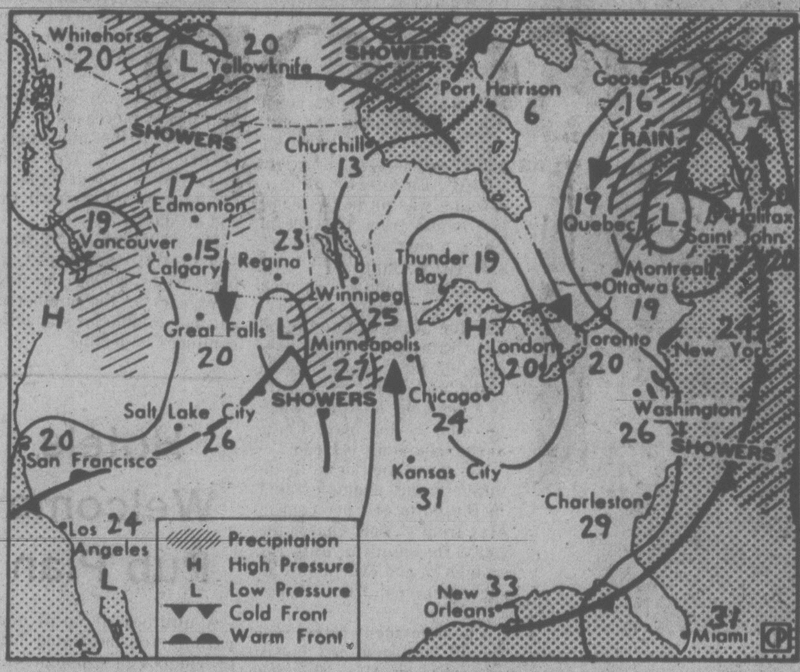

Map valid until noon Wednesday

For the next two days a depression spreading unstable air will move slowly across southern areas of B.C. Showers and cool temperatures will persist. Farther west a ridge of high pressure is moving towards B.C. Drier air will gradually spread to the outer coast Wednesday and to the Interior thereafter, bringing with it sunnier skies and warmer temperatures towards the weekend.

Judge Orders Secrecy In Sun's Secrets Act Trial

Times News Services

TORONTO — Some testimony will not be heard in public in the preliminary hearing into charges laid under the Official Secrets Act against The Toronto Sun, a provincial court judge decided Monday.

Judge Carl Waisberg made the ruling following a voir dire — evidence heard with the public and media absent from the court — held to determine whether portions of the testimony given by an RCMP official might be prejudicial to the interests of the country.

In the first case brought against a newspaper under the Act, the government has charged columns printed in the Sun revealed the identity of a Canadian double agent to Soviet intelligence.

The hearing into the charges could bring Sun editor Peter Worthington and publisher J. Douglas Creighton up to 14 years in prison if convicted.

Michael Spooner, chief superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police's security service, led off the government case, telling the provincial court that parts of a secret RCMP document outlined in Worthington's March 7 column tipped the Soviets that their attempts to recruit Canadians had been detected.

In one case, Spooner said, an unidentified Canadian Armed Forces non-commissioned officer stationed in Moscow was recruited by the KGB secret police with promises of money.

During the six months the man worked for the KGB in Moscow, he planted electronic listening devices in the Canadian embassy, supplied embassy floor plans and identified Canadian intelligence officers, Spooner said.

When the serviceman was later posted to Peking, his tasks for the KGB included spying on diplomats from other Western nations and even Soviet nationals in China, he said.

Spooner said he eventually came to the attention of the RCMP and was made into a counter-spy, with the RCMP using him to gain information about his contacts with the KGB.

The Worthington column, which contained a one-paragraph outline of the case, let the Soviets know that he had been uncovered, Spooner said.

Meanwhile, Conservative MP Tom Cossitt said Monday that the charge under the Official Secrets Act is one of the greatest abuses of the Canadian judicial process.

Patronage Out Of Control - Tory

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Elmer MacKay said Monday he has evidence that suggests patronage in the awarding of federal government contracts is getting out of control.

In the Commons, MacKay asked whether it has been Liberal government policy to clear certain contracts in Quebec with the Quebec campaign chairman for the Liberal party, formerly Senator Jean Marchand and now Marc Lalonde, inter-governmental affairs minister.

Acting Prime Minister Jean Cretien said it is normal for cabinet ministers to keep track of other departments' projects.

MacKay said he has minutes of a 1975 meeting between Barney Danson, then urban affairs minister, and Edgar Gallant, then chairman of the National Capital Commission (NCC).

The document states: "The minister wants to make sure the firms chosen for major contracts of this sort (a federally-funded housing project in Hull, Que.) are cleared politically with the ministers responsible, through his office."

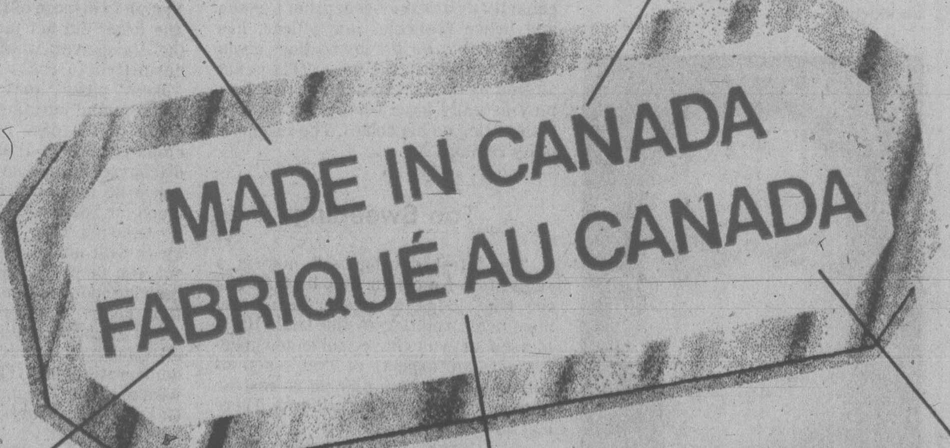
READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?

A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?
Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.
When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?
Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is
(A) made or grown in Canada and
(B) of equal or better value and quality.
That's not just good advice ... it's good sense.



What is made in Canada?
Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.
As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.
Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?
Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.
If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.
Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?
Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Produce of P.E.I." Or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabriqué au Quebec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."
The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.
And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

Constitutional Reform

Prime Minister Trudeau's proposals for constitutional reform tabled yesterday in the House of Commons remain vague enough that it is difficult to foresee precisely what effect they would have on the future of "the Canadian federation," as Confederation is to be renamed.

Changes in the composition of the Senate, some provincial say in the appointment of judges to the supreme court of Canada, a true bill of rights for Canadian citizens — these are the most concrete reforms Trudeau proposes, and are apparently the only ones he intends to try to implement before the next federal election.

They are all close to motherhood issues. No one in Canada objects to a revamping of the Senate except a few senior Senators, and that was only to be expected. Sen. Eugene Forsey argues that a "House of the Provinces" would become a "House of Obstruction," bent on hamstringing the federal government. That will undoubtedly prove to be an exaggeration, provided only that the provinces agree to approach the new idea with a modicum of good will. But even were it to be true, a House of Obstruction in which regional differences could be clearly aired would surely be no worse than a House of Retirement for old party hacks which is what the Senate is now.

Nearly everyone agrees too that the provinces should have some say in supreme court appointments so the various regions can be more accurately reflected in the make-up of the court. And legislation that really protects the human and civil rights of Canadians has been long overdue.

However, these specific changes do nothing to deal with the real issue of the national unity debate — the division of power between the provincial and federal levels of government. It has been on this issue that federal-provincial talks on the constitution have broken down each time they have been tried in recent years with the provinces, especially Quebec, wanting more powers than Ottawa was ready to cede.

This is also the issue on which Ottawa cannot act alone. If it cannot get provincial agreement on the revamped Senate or on the bill of rights, it can go merrily on its way, making the changes and trusting that the citizens of Canada will accept them even if the provincial governments do not.

But it would be absurd for Ottawa to try to act alone on the issue of division of powers, an issue which affects the provinces as fundamentally as it does the central government.

This is where the whole proposal is likely to bog down. It seems improbable, to say the least, that Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, the other provincial premiers and the federal government could all agree on any proposal to divide up government authority in Canada. If they cannot everyone would be back to square one, at least until after Quebec's independence referendum.

Perhaps the best that can be said for Trudeau's paper is that at least it gives Canadians and their governments a jumping-off point from which to begin talking about the real issues involved in constitutional reform and some ways in which we might solve them.

Wean the CAC

Although many consumer activists and some ordinary Canadians may be worried by what seems to be a shift by Ottawa to a consumer policy of caveat emptor, it is difficult to question the common sense of the most recent controversial utterance of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Warren Allmand.

He suggested to the Consumers' Association of Canada that the organization become less dependent on the government for financing, which set the CAC watchdogs immediately to barking like an assistant deputy minister threatened with the loss of a prized program.

The analogy is apt. Financially, the CAC is an arm of the government, subsidized by more than $150,000 a year. Should Ottawa fund the Canadian Manufacturers' Association? Would Ralph Nader accept funds from a government which he constantly criticizes for failures in consumer protection? They are entirely analogous examples.

Nader's groups are entirely self-sustaining and, we suggest, a darn sight more entitled than the CAC to our respect and consideration.

MPs Are in a Nasty Mood

OTTAWA — When Prime Minister Trudeau announced in May that there would be no election this spring or summer he suggested that it was more important for Parliament to go on working on behalf of the nation.

Things have not worked out quite that positively. Parliament is still in a standard sort of pre-election mood, intensely partisan and quarrelsome. The mood has been exacerbated by the development of issues upon which feelings would run deep even in a different political context.

One is the budget dispute and the parliamentary tactics the government has followed. The row that developed between Finance Minister Jean Chretien and Quebec's Jacques Parizeau naturally led to controversy in the House of Commons, a perfectly normal development. But the unusual tactics which the government insisted upon in the House intensified the dispute there.

The government insisted upon full debate of its tax bill and approval in principle before it was able to present a complete piece of legislation to the House of Commons. It received approval in principle with the House of Commons in ignorance of the arrangements that ultimately will be made with Quebec and this was secured through the use of a time allocation rule, close kin to closure.

Stifling Debate

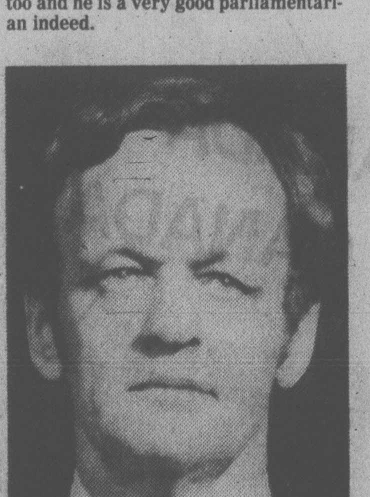
(Chretien's staff have pointed out to me that I was in error in saying in a previous column that debate had never before been forcefully terminated on a tax bill. In fact, as they remind me, Chretien used the same tactic during debate on his last budget legislation in November. He did, therefore, have a precedent although it was one which he had established himself. There is no doubt, at least, that he is the first finance minister who twice in a row has had to use a relative of closure to get tax legislation passed.)

The oddity of the government's course, in demanding approval in principle for an incomplete tax bill, is that there is no urgency to the legislation. Debate could easily have been suspended, at no cost to the government, while Chretien came to a final decision on the Quebec aspects of his budget.

The sales tax reductions, which were the crux of the budget so far as economic stimulus was concerned, are in effect. While there are many income tax amendments in the bill, it is not a matter of great importance whether the bill actually passes this month or next October; tidying up the Income Tax Act is a perennial affair.

When Chretien began debate on his time allocation measure he used Defence Minister Barney Danson as his backup man in the debate. The fact that House Leader Allan MacEachen, known to have been in town and in good health, was not in the House attracted widespread attention. It is usual for the House leader to play a part when closure or its related cut-off rules are being applied. It was widely assumed among parliamentarians that this time the House leader did not want to become involved.

While some of the opposition to Chretien's course in the House is undoubtedly partisan, there are opposition members who are disturbed by the precedent that has been set this time, which they regard as contrary to good parliamentary practice. The idea that Parliament may go on being forced to give approval in principle to legislation, the provisions of which are partially unknown, is repugnant to them. MacEachen's absence at the critical period has inevitably led to speculation that it is repugnant to him too and he is a very good parliamentarian indeed.



JEAN CHRETIEN
. . . forced to use closure

This whole row is extremely unfortunate because it is a dispute over tactics. By seeking to involve the provinces, with their great revenues and expenditures, in national economic policy, Chretien was being imaginative and innovative. Despite the difficulties that have arisen this time, it is a road that will probably have to be explored much further in future.

There is nothing in the least wrong with a federal finance minister asking provinces to co-operate with him within their own sphere of jurisdiction provided he remembers two rules and observes them: in such situations, the last word must remain with the provinces, and agreements must be complete before the federal government goes ahead. This may give provinces a veto but, where it is their jurisdiction that is involved, they have it anyway.

The problem of secrecy has become another of the issues worsening the mood of this pre-election period in Parliament. It has been brought to a head by the total secrecy in which the Peter Treu trial under the Official Secrets Act was conducted in Montreal.

No one disputes the fact that there was evidence at the trial which in the national interest had to be protected from disclosure. But the idea that the entire trial should have been secret, with only the sentence public, has proven repugnant both inside and outside Parliament, because it is inconceivable that every single aspect of the trial had to be suppressed from public scrutiny and because there is such a strong tradition that public policy and the cause of justice require open courts.

Justice Minister Ron Basford, in his capacity as attorney-general of Canada and hence the chief law officer, has responsibility for the instructions given Crown counsel in the case. This is not altered by the fact that the instructions may actually have been given by officials acting on his behalf. The responsibility remains his.

Too Sweeping

The latest development now is a suggestion from him that he may ask the trial judge to release non-secret documents relating to the trial. He is himself known to have spoken to outsiders of some aspects of Treu's actions with some freedom, placing no restrictions on repetition of his remarks. There can be no quarrel with this.

As attorney-general he has more than enough power to make the decision whether these aspects of the affair should be secret or not. If he decides they should not be, there is no authority that can challenge him. But the fact that he has felt free to refer to these matters in conversation strengthens the conviction that there was never a need for a totally secret trial.

The real problem with the Treu case lies in the unsatisfactory nature of the Official Secrets Act, legislation long overdue for reform.

Students of the act can relate its interesting history. As it was originally passed in the United Kingdom it was much narrower, more specifically related to such matters as espionage and real subversion. Subsequently, leakages that were broader in nature than this infuriated the British government of the day and the sweeping provisions of the act, which in theory can now cover anything of an official nature, were written.

When Canada came to copy the British legislation it picked up the offensive, sweeping legislation, not the desirable and necessary early act closely tailored to genuine problems of national security. There is pressure for reform but, on the Liberal side, no known movement towards it.

Thanks, Bill

Through Premier W. R. Bennett, his cabinet and the people of British Columbia, we were presented with a cheque for $360,000. This amount completed our capital funding and at this point the province has given us $810,000 of the total building costs of $1,502,000.

I thank the premier and his cabinet for their generosity at this time. Our need was great, our personal obligations to the bank were tremendous, our contributions to the handicapped and society were exemplary and they responded admirably and unselfishly.

Though I hesitate to single out anyone for special commendation, I must again thank Hugh Curtis for being part of the original group that worked so diligently the past 10 years to make the dream of such a centre as ours a reality.

In my over 30 years of working in the rehabilitation of handicapped persons, with numerous government bodies, I consider this present government to have a much deeper sense of concern for the "little man" than any of the other government bodies.

Our sincere appreciation to you Mr. Premier, your cabinet, and the people of British Columbia from the Garth Homer Achievement Centre, staff and volunteers and each and every handicapped person. — W. G. Butler, President, Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

The Other Side

I noted with interest Mr. D. Tyre's Need Unions letter in the Times of June 6. There was only one thing wrong with his letter, as far as I could see and that was because it only gave one side of the picture — the union side. No mention was made of any abuse of union power, of the adverse affects of strikes on the economy or of hardships arbitrarily imposed on the general public. The letter did not refer to unions attempting to close bridges to public travel; to striking firemen standing by while houses burn; to striking outside workers leaving cities like festering garbage heaps and harassing householders with guts enough to dispose of their own garbage. The letter did not mention the case of the Vancouver woman who was not permitted to cross striking hospital wokers' picket lines to see her dying mother. And certainly no mention was made of the case of the B.C. Hydro employee whom Hydro was forced to discharge at the union's demand because he had been expelled from the union for "defiance of union discipine".

Although I do not advocate doing away with unions (who or what would succeed them?) I do believe that their growing powers must be kept under tight contrl. I suggest that a salutary effect might best be achieved by giving all Canadians a free and unrestricted democratic right to choose whether they wish to belong to a union or not. — Peter Gage, 308-250 Douglas Street.

Old Army Badges?

My name is Andrew Pike and I am nearly 10 years old. I am very keen on collecting army badges. My best are the Canadian badges. I have some nice ones with the maple leaf, also one artillery badge with a number on the wheel. I am hoping some kind people from Canada will be able to help me with my collection with any old badges please. — Andrew Pike, Hauteville, St. Peter Port, Guernsey, Channel Islands.

Sexist Headline

I must comment on the sexist headline, Naomi Confesses to Tears in the June 9 issue of the Times. The story tells us of a woman who claimed an around-the-world solo sailing record. I strongly doubt there would be a similar headline to comment on a man's equal achievement, even thought it is obvious that any person undergoing such a rigorous and sustained effort would encounter personally trying times.

Perhaps I should be satisifeid that the headline wasn't Naomi Confesses to Tears Due to Premenstrual Tension. Shape up, Times! — Susan Moger, 2770 Dufferin.

Go Slow

We are witnessing in Canada, now, a great intensification of the effort to make us "go nuclear" to solve our energy problems. Whether the effort is being deliberately orchestrated or not is still unclear; but the recent letters columns of various national newspapers show that it is happening. Senior people related in various ways to the nuclear industry — including the federal government itself, through its newly formed propaganda instrument, the Committee on Nuclear Issues in the Community — are finding it necessary to "answer" every expression of adverse opinion.

These gung ho respondents usually reassure us concerning the least difficult problems of nuclear management. They have no re-assuring statistics to quote us concerning the two most frightening problems — disposal of nuclear waste and the police state that will be necessary to make utterly certain that accidents and sabotage do not happen even once. They have no statistics on these subjects because the events that these statistics would measure have ever been tried.

I do not write this letter in blind opposition; it is something to consider. But I write in opposition to those who speak so smoothly about problems of literally unimaginable scope — which they themselves have obviously not pondered since they are able so easily to assure us concerning the impossible. I write in opposition to those who try to bamboozle us by speaking comfortable words about lesser problems, glossed so that we think that their assurances apply to the whole; or who imply that we can learn how to handle nuclear in the way we have learned how to handle everything else — by trial and error — when, in some aspects of nuclear, there must be no error, ever.

If we make the wrong move now in the storage of nuclear wastes, for example, and do not discover beforehand that we are about to go wrong, it may, by the time we do discover it, already be too late. We are moving into an area where in some aspects there is no room for error. Some say we must take risks. It is all very well to let a few human beings be put at risk, in order that new achievements may perhaps be made (Columbus sailing to America, manned exploration of space, vaccination). It is quite another — and reason for enormous caution — when the whole human race is the experiment. — Prof. Carl Ridd, Department of Religious Studies, University of Winnipeg, Winnipeg.

Tax Deduction

Those Californians who voted for their Proposition 13 would have revolted years ago if they had born a Canadian homeowner's burden — high property taxes plus not being able to claim such taxes as a deduction on their income tax.

Let's not revolt against the wrong level of government. Our provincial and municipal governments need every penny they can lay their hands on but it is at the federal level where monstrous waste occurs e.g. $100,000 spent over a man's claim for $10 overtime.

Instead of threatening to burn his property tax assessment, MLA Vic Stephens should spearhead a petition to Ottawa allowing Canadian home owners to claim property taxes as a deduction on their income tax form.

On Taxes

In the Times of June 8, I notice Ald. Murray Glazier and a private citizen lamenting about apartment owners paying lower taxes this year and private dwellings making up the difference. I also received the same type of message from Saanich — with my tax bill.

My personal experience is this: our apartment building (eight suites, three years old) is up in taxes by $300 although its assessed value is down slightly. My commercial building is up by more than $400 in taxes required, and my house is up $150. Where is there evidence of a shift in taxation from apartments to homes in the city of Victoria? (All of those properties are in Victoria.)

I support fully the assessment formula introduced by the provincial government. All property should be valued at true market value and should not be valued by estimate, no matter how experienced an assessor may be as was the case before this year. — Robert Fleming, 2490 Sinclair Road.

Keep Oil Out

Unanimous support is reported for keeping Saanich Inlet free from industrial development, as recommended by the Central Saanich Ratepayers Association. However, the Capital Region Board has proposed that the Bamberton shore should be the place for the ugly fuel tank farm to be moved from the inner harbor. This belies belief for two main reasons:

1. A tank leak could kill all the fish in this famous fishing area which many of us have enjoyed for so long and also wipe out the desperately important Goldstream salmon run at spawning time.

2. To say nothing of the behemoth tankers traversing the Malahat to add to the present carnage there plus 10,000 gallons of explosive fuel careening down those steep slopes out of control with brake failure. Have the members of the board lost their marbles? — Clarence Goode, 4690 Cordova Bay Rd.

Women's baggy pants may be thing of past

China Dons Skirts Again

By JOHN FRASER

PEKING — The skirt is about to make a comeback in China, probably within the next two weeks. According to Western witnesses and Chinese sources, the official word was mysteriously given out more than a month ago that skirts, and possibly dresses, would be considered appropriate summer garb for teen-aged girls and women after the middle of June.

Well-stocked Peking department stores have been busy selling cloth for several weeks and apparently among the most aggressive buyers have been soldiers of the People's Liberation Army, who have been making purchases on behalf of their wives or daughters. There has been speculation that word was first passed out through national institutions such as the PLA and has been sifting down to the masses ever since.

At least two wives of senior Communist Party officials have been seen in dresses at receptions recently, giving a foretaste of a remarkable turnaround in Chinese fashion. Indeed, the history of the skirt over the past 15 years provides an intriguing footnote to the larger and turbulent world of Chinese politics.

Up until the Cultural Revolution, women were free to wear skirts when they were an appropriate garment, although Chinese peasant women have been wearing pants for centuries. Eventually, however, the Red Guards branded skirts as Western, bourgeois and lewd and they disappeared entirely between 1966 and 1975.

Unknown to most Chinese people at the time, however, the skirt won a powerful supporter in 1972 in the person of Chiang Ching, Chairman Mao Tse-tung's wife, although it took her nearly two years to summon up the courage to wear a dress in public, when it electrified a crowd at a Peking sports stadium.

After that there was a modest press campaign to get women to wear more colorful clothing, including skirts and dresses at prices ranging from $8 to $15. They never really caught on for several reasons: they were expensive, for many women they are impractical working garments and, perhaps most importantly, women wisely worried about the ideological implications. Later, Chiang Ching was to be ousted from power and branded a member of the Gang of Four.

Her fall was a big blow to the skirt and in nearly all of the savage cartoon lampoons against Chiang Ching, she is depicted wearing a dress, a sign presumably of her decadence. Not surprisingly, there wasn't a woman in China who cared to wear a garment that would immediately associate her with the gang.

Now the skirt is said to have a real chance and observers take this as a sign of confidence in a seemingly stable and less oppressive government, as well as of higher wages and better stocked stores. It is interesting to note that even women's pants, which were once universally baggy, have recently become better tailored with neat creases and fitted waists. When the dresses and skirts do appear, they will probably be a conservative midcalf length and very full.

Argentina: 'It's in a Terrible Mess'

By RICHARD GOTT
Manchester Guardian

BUENOS AIRES — Blue and white flags were flying in the streets of Buenos Aires the other day, not for the World Cup but because it was Argentina's national day. On May 25, 1810, the ruling council of Buenos Aires deposed the Spanish Viceroy and independence from Spain was consolidated six years later. May 25 now is a holiday to commemorate the event. There was much saluting of the flag, and a Te Deum sung in the cathedral in the presence of the cardinal and the heads of the armed forces, who also happen to be running the country.

But to judge from the atmosphere in Buenos Aires, there was little popular celebration. Never have the people of the capital appeared so exhausted, silent, and morose. It will need more than a win for Argentina to improve the national mood for long.

According to the military authorities, the foreign press, particularly in Europe, gives a totally distorted picture of events in Argentina. Newspapers and television abroad, argues the foreign minister, Admiral Oscar Montes, have allowed themselves to be manipulated by "international terrorism" into denigrating Argentina. But the image is not the problem. The military government spends millions of dollars on creating and burnishing its public image abroad. Public relations experts in several world capitals, employed by the government, have been set to work to fly journalists to Buenos Aires, to distribute information and to influence opinion behind the scenes — and who can doubt that their work has not been without its impact?

But while they, and what Admiral Montes calls "the subversive groups which represent international terrorism in Argentina," may from their different perspectives tinker with the image, the reality speaks for itself.

Loss of hope

Argentina is in a terrible mess, perhaps as bad a mess as it has ever been in the past 168 years. What makes the situation so bad is that no one — least of all the military rulers — knows what to do about it. There is an atmosphere of hopelessness here which will only with difficulty be overcome.

This is not just a question of human rights — the absence of which in Argentina has given the government such a bad name — though this is an important symptom of the problem. Take the cases of the thousands of mostly young people who have simply disappeared since General Jorge Videla deposed Isabel Peron in March 1976. Last month the respectable Buenos Aires newspaper, La Prensa, published a list of more than 2,500 names of people who have not been seen again after having been "taken prisoner at their work, in their homes, or in public thoroughfares ostensibly by armed groups claiming to be members of the armed services or security forces." The list, covering three pages, appeared as an advertisement paid for by the Ecumenical Movement for Human Rights, the permanent assembly for human rights.

"It is quite impossible," notes an editorial in the Buenos Aires Herald this week, "to pretend that human rights are respected in this country while this enormous human problem remains untackled. In many cases, after two years without a single clue as to the whereabouts of a missing son, daughter, husband, or wife, relatives have given up hope. They are simply asking whether the person they seek is alive or dead. It is not too much to ask."

VIDELA . . . cold-eyed general heads ruling junta

But in contemporary Argentina, even that is too much to ask. The military government seems incapable of making any decision, about human rights or anything else, for the simple reason that it is bitterly divided. When General Videla, together with Admiral Emilio Massera and General Orlando Agosti, seized power in 1976 they were united behind a single aim. They were determined to crush the Peronist movement, both the dominant right-wing element composed of Isabel Peron, of her secretary Jose Lopez Rega, who thought he was the reincarnation of the prophet Daniel, and of the metalworkers' leader Lorenzo Miguel, as well as the left-wing movement of revolutionary guerrillas, the Montoneros.

Beyond this aim the military saw less clearly, though some of them had a grandiose if barely formulated scheme for a post-democratic and counter-revolutionary society that would change the face of Argentina for all time.

After two years, some of these aims have been fulfilled. Isabel and Miguel are behind bars and Lopez Rega is wandering in some unknown desert exile. The leaders of the Montoneros, too, are for the most part in exile, unwilling or unable to embark on further acts of armed resistance to military rule. But the military ideologues of the counter-revolution have also been thrown overboard, and the soldiers at the top are now left with no very clear plan of what they want to do with the country.

Stagflation

And every day the problems become more pressing. The economy, in the hands of an Old Etonian Monetarist, Jose Martinez de Hoz, is in acute recession, with inflation still running at more than 200 per cent per year. As an unparalleled example of "stagflation" it has brought foreign economists to watch in amazement, but hardly to applaud.

On the political front there has been a marginal improvement in recent weeks with the announcement at the end of April that General Videla will retire as commander-in-chief of the armed forces at the beginning of August. He will be president for three years with a three-man junta below him in a senatorial "advise and consent" role.

Possibly these changes will lead to a more united military leadership which will then be able to make plans for the future. At present the military rather naively hope that the old political parties, at present "in recess," will wither away. With the old political base, such a solution might be conceivable in a country like Colombia where the political parties have no popular support, but would be impossible in Argentina where substantial sections of the population have sound historical reasons for being radicals or Peronists. The more probable alternative is that the military will seek to co-operate with the civilian politicians. But if this were tried at present the politicians would certainly demand more than the soldiers are prepared to give.

The Phase-Out Work Week

By GEORGE DOBIE
The Vancouver Sun

An argument is going on across the country about compulsory retirement at age 65.

Some firms demand it with labor contracts while others allow employees to remain longer if they want to and if they can still perform the work.

According to a new booklet put out by the federal labor department, a growing interest has developed to wipe out compulsory retirement until at least age 70.

Early retirement means having to accept a pension that is subject to an "actuarial reduction" because contributions are made for a shorter time and premiums paid for a longer period.

What's happening is that the cost of living continues to rise and, rather than having to accept a smaller pension or one not indexed to the cost of living, older people want to work longer.

And statistics about longevity add weight to arguments that the elderly are capable of doing just that. (Two million Canadians were 65 or over in 1975, up from 768,000 in 1941.)

The booklet comes to a compromise conclusion by suggesting flexible retirement rules. These rules would allow earlier retirement under certain conditions as well as the option to work beyond the normal retirement age. That would take care of the needs and wishes of the individual employees.

The booklet doesn't work out the terms, presumably leaving that to labor-management negotiations or legislation.

These adjustments in inflationary times are necessary. But allowing people to go beyond 65 as full-time workers does not recognize high unemployment. Such a person is hanging on to the job of a deserving younger successor. The effect is to hold up the initial entry of the young into the work force.

If everybody reaching 65 suddenly decided to stay on the job, unemployment would become even more serious, since about 100,000 leave the work force by retiring at or about age 65 every year.

Then problems such as underemployment among university graduates — a global calamity — would begin to get worse here. Often these professionally qualified people step down on the employment ladder and accept jobs for which they are overqualified. The low man is bumped on to the unemployment rolls.

Why can't they all probe the feasibility of — for the need of a better term — a Phase-Out Work Week (POW)?

Between 55 and 65 a person would have the option of going from the five-day, 40-hour week to the four-day, 32-hour work week. At 65, if they still insisted on working, they would be reduced to the 20-hour week, working alternating three and two-day weeks.

Simple mathematics show that new employees could be brought into the work force at no over-all increased cost to the employers under POW providing they got paid for hours worked.

A lot would depend on the flexibility of union negotiators who normally insist on no reduction in take-home pay. It would also depend on whether employers would willingly give the plan a chance and work out new shift schedules.

The authorities believe a desirable goal is for both public and private pensions to provide income of about 60 to 70 per cent of average, pre-retirement earnings. Accompanied by the existing income tax exemption for pension income and the elimination of work related expenses, an adequate income level could be provided.

But, until that goal has been reached, it would be worthwhile for both labor and management to become more innovative in their bargaining in the organized sector.

Why should a man have to keep working because he is five years younger than his wife and can't get by until both are getting public pensions?

How many old age pensioners are on welfare?

Why should retired workers have to apply for unemployment insurance because their pensions are insufficient?

But John Fryer of the B.C. Government Employees Union was impressed with their version of POW when he paid a visit there last spring with a union delegation. Some industries place workers on half-time for five years prior to retirement at 65. They get half-time pay but receive further income from their pension fund while continuing to make contributions to the plan.

A Mean Streets Town

russell baker

It was a mean town. It was a curse on the lips of everybody in the territory. It's time to clean that town up, everybody said. Restore law and order. Make it fit for kids to go to Sunday school again and for schoolmarms to walk the streets. Stop the bamboozling and cheating and stealing and shooting.

I speak, of course, of Washington as it was perceived in 1976. The metaphor belongs to Henry Kissinger, who once observed that the American view of government had been shaped by 50 years of cowboy movies and likened himself to the galloping horseman who provides last-minute rescues to delight the audience. It is a useful metaphor for explaining Jimmy Carter's recent decline in public esteem.

* * *

Far more useful, I suspect, than the theory that Carter is the victim of nasty newspaper people and restless television reporters who have been picking on him out of evil habit and dyspeptic character. This proposition has been expounded lately by sympathetic editorialists and administration drumbeaters playing a theme which might be titled, "Let's Not Be Beastly to the President."

It is more plausible to ascribe the president's loss of popularity to disappointed cinematic expectations. The election that brought him to office occurred in an atmosphere that called for Randolph Scott or John Wayne. Washington was perceived as a place comparable to Dodge City before Wyatt Earp arrived, which in westerns was a nest full of lowdown human varmints.

There was a mean street. Pennsylvania Avenue. At one end stood, not a saloon, but a Capitol, filled with gun-toting poker players who could skin the innocent slicker than a hickory elm. At the other, not the general store run by Mister Big who was behind all the cattle rustling, but the White House, where the things that had been going on for years were a scandal to God-fearing folks.

Here, as every moviegoer intuitively recognized, was a town ripe for the arrival of a stranger, a lone rider, pure of heart, galloping in from the purifying grandeur of the great open countryside. In a room full of bourbon guzzlers, he would order sarsaparilla, and afterward clean up the town.

Jimmy Carter filled the role to perfection. He even taught Sunday school. He didn't wear a white hat, but he carried his own suitcase. He didn't ride a white horse, but he walked down Pennsylvania Avenue as bravely as Gary Cooper at high noon. And he was a stranger. Was he a stranger! When he took the badge, he announced his intention to give the country a government as good as its people, which was a way of saying he was going to clean out a sinkhole.

Looking back, it is hard to say why people expected him to do this unless they really believed the problems in Washington were of such simplicity they could be settled by a shoot-out at the O.K. Corral. If they had been, reason would have offered little hope that Carter would prevail, since almost all the good guns in town were against him.

* * *

Washington, of course, is not John Ford's vision of Tombstone, Arizona, ca. 1880. If it is mean, and it may be, it is a meanness of a peculiarly 20th-century variety, which is bred in the marrow of bureaucracy and borne in the bones of politicians and lobbyists serving competing constituencies. With few exceptions, few of the mean men of Washington think of themselves as anything but good guys doing their best for good folks back home. They do not take warmly to strangers who impute disagreeable motives to their labors. In fact, they do not take warmly to strangers.

The stranger Carter was eminently electable in the mood of 1976, but the qualities that helped him win also made it unlikely he would find much complicity in Washington for the cleansing he proposed once he got there. By punching snouts, by resorting to subtle forms of bribery available to presidents, by rallying a passionate constituency of his own in the boondocks, he might have corralled Washington into some kind of acquiescence. This would have been asking a great deal of a man with no experience of federal government, little knowledge of how Washington worked and no disposition to hire people who had it.

* * *

The decline of the president's popularity probably tells us as much about the naivete of the public view of government as about the president's inability to satisfy the naive public expectations he helped create. It is interesting that his loudest critics still say he is "a decent man," as though the white hat may yet prevail.

Washington is tougher than Tombstone, tougher than Dodge. Maybe this is what we should be most alarmed about. Not since Lyndon Johnson has any president managed to master it, and even Johnson was gunned down in the end. Down there they've outgrown cowboy tales.

Anti-Budworm Trials Open

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trials began Monday on three small plots in the Interior in an attempt to control the western spruce budworm with a bacterium and a virus.

Earlier this year the British Columbia Forest Service cancelled its chemical spray program against the budworm because it could not be justified economically. At present, about 585,000 acres of Douglas fir in the Lillooet-Boston Bar area and 18,000 acres in the Adams-Shuswap region east of Kamloops are infested with the worm.

Mike Finnis, pest management officer in the protection division, said one of the tests involves the bacterium bacillus thuringienses which weakens and kills the insect when ingested. It has no side effects on humans or animals.

Finnis said the bacterium has been tested in Eastern Canada. Some programs were excellent and others were failures.

The local tests are being conducted on three small plots that cover a total of 750 acres east of Lillooet, west of Cache Creek and south of Ashcroft.

Crews have been in the area for several weeks laying out plots for the aircraft and monitoring the numbers and development of the budworm population.

Finnis said the virus which was developed by the Forest Pest Institute at Sault St. Marie, Ont., was tested here in 1976 and the results were marginal. There is only enough virus available this year for 150 acres.

BURNED GIRL WINS SUIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — An eight-year-old girl severely burned in a gasoline fire two years ago has received a settlement of $65,000 in British Columbia Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice G. S. Rae granted Valerie Louise Lock the settlement after he found her uncle, William Boufflioux, negligent in an incident on his Fort St. John farm July 22, 1976.

The judge said Bouffioux did not take reasonable care in burning a bee's nest on a hayrack which led to his niece's suffering burns to 35 per cent of her body.

After Bouffioux poured gasoline on the nest and ignited it, his niece, his 12-year-old daughter and another girl took more gasoline from the 500-gallon tank and poured it on the hay rack. It ignited, engulfing Valerie and her cousin in flames.

Loggers Now Fight New Forest Act

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Truck Loggers Association reversed its earlier stand and said Monday that it now is opposed to British Columbia's new Forest Act.

"This act kills private enterprise opportunity for our young people and creates a feudal system where domestic entrepeneurs can only function as servants of a monopoly controlled outside Canada," said association president Dave O'Connor.

The association, which represents independent truck loggers throughout B.C., was one of the first organizations to give its tentative approval to the proposed changes after the act was introduced last month.

Shortly after Forest Minister Tom Waterland introduced the legislation, O'Connor said he was especially pleased with the provisions for small loggers and independent logging contractors.

"We have now studied the fine print of the new Forest Act and must oppose it," O'Connor said Monday.

He said the forest resource "is going to be misapplied and misused for generations by a foreign-controlled monopoly under new legislation that protects and enshrines it immune from public scrutiny of (timber) allocation procedures."

O'Connor said survival of the independents could be severely damaged.

The association said it fears the multi-national companies will not only control the lion's share of the resource but also the best-situated and best-quality lumber.

It said that existing cutting rights should not be reissued automatically and should only be allocated following public hearings.

2,4-D Causes Cancer, U.S. Scientist Claims

VANCOUVER (CP) — The herbicide 2,4-D, which has been proposed for use in Okanagan Lake system to combat Eurasian milfoil, is a carcinogenic or cancer-causing chemical defoliant, says a scientist, who has reviewed 2,4-D studies conducted by the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Dr. Melvin Reuber, who was to speak today in Penticton, B.C., at a public inquiry into the proposed use of 2,4-D, said he has concluded, from a review he conducted of FDA studies of 2,4-D for a U.S. senate subcommittee, that the herbicide is definitely carcinogenic.

Reuber said the studies, which used a concentration of five parts a million of 2,4-D on rats in the lowest dosage, appeared to show that 2,4-D produced cancerous tumors in the animals.

While the proposal of the provincial water investigation branch is to use 2,4-D at a level of .001 parts a million in specific areas of the lake, Reuber said dilution won't make the herbicide less carcinogenic:

"The basic conclusion is that if something is carcinogenic at any level it is carcinogenic at all levels.

"The reason we do animal studies is to find out if chemicals are carcinogenic, and if they're carcinogenic to animals they're going to be carcinogenic to humans."

Reuber, in a telephone interview from Penticton, said his review of the FDA report, conducted for Senator Ted Kennedy's subcommittee on administrative procedures and practices, disagreed with the findings of the authors of the report, who did not believe 2,4-D was carcinogenic.

His conclusions, however, were the same as those of the statistician who compiled the results but did not write the report, he said.

Reuber, who has also worked with the U.S. environmental protection agency on carcinogenic chemicals and currently is with the Frederick Cancer Research Centre in Frederick, Md., suggested that the authors of the FDA report were possibly pressured into finding that 2,4-D was not harmful.

He said the chemical industry has millions of dollars invested in 2,4-D and other herbicides and a finding that they were carcinogenic would force the government to order them withdrawn from the market. He said he had felt pressure when conducting his review of 2,4-D.

If carcinogenic chemicals were already present in Okanagan Lake, which he said was likely, the use of 2,4-D in the lake could increase their amount to a dangerous level.

LAKE INCIDENT TO BE PROBED

The provincial government is investigating an incident on Okanagan Lake Friday in which an environment ministry technican was injured as a result of an anti-2,4-D protest.

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said in an interview that the technician, Ian Horner, became entangled with a line which was run over by a Greenpeace Foundation boat. Horner and his boat were subsequently dragged for a considerable distance.

The minister said Horner — who was bruised in the incident — is considering laying a criminal charge, and may also initiate in a civil case.

Nielsen said he does not think the incident was intentional.

In the legislature, Pat Jordan (SC—North Okanagan) said the foolish boating practices of Greenpeace could have led to Horner's death.

Meanwhile, a University of Guelph professor told the city of Penticton that 2,4-D is not a dangerous chemical.

C. G. Waywell, associate professor in the horticultural science department of the university's Ontario Agricultural College, said in a letter to the city that judicious use of 2,4-D is probably the only solution to the Eurasian water milfoil problem in the Okanagan lakes system.

Special Care For Oily Birds

PORT MOODY (CP) — Well-meaning citizens who attempt to rescue oil-slicked birds on their own often do more damage than good, Don Adams, manager of the Victoria branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says.

Adams, who has developed some innovative methods of capturing and cleaning oiled birds, spoke at a workshop designed to train a squad of volunteers to rush to oil spills where waterfowl risk death by drowning, starvation and cold.

"Almost anybody can get rid of the obvious outer damage," he said, "but it's the internal damage that kills the bird."

The procedure involves a tripod of 1,000-watt quartz lights and a mufferless generator mounted on a rowboat.

"The idea is that the lights are so bright and the generator so loud the bird is too confused to do anything except sit there and wait till you pick it up," he said.

"A healthy bird that is contaminated is almost impossible to catch in daylight."

En route to a treatment centre, he said, the bird is then placed in a small cardboard box which helps it retain body heat. Its beak is taped shut to prevent it from preening itself because the oil causes dehydration.

The bird is then given three gentle scrubbings in warm water and soap along the grain of the feathers to remove the oil, Adams said.

He said that unlike other treatment centres which feed the birds dead fish from trays, he provides live fish in the holding pool which the birds must catch themselves.

Trudeau Gives Provinces Deadline for Constitution

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau has bluntly served notice on Canada's provincial leaders he intends to push through major constitutional changes in areas of "exclusive" federal power with or without their approval.

Trudeau said Monday he has set a deadline of July 1, 1979, for passage of legislation that would reform the Senate and Supreme Court to increase provincial clout.

Extending an olive branch of conciliation while leaving no doubt he has a big stick of solid Canadian maple close at hand, Trudeau said he hopes Ottawa and the provinces can reach a "consensus" on the reforms.

But Trudeau told a news conference after introducing a White Paper of constitutional reform proposals in the Commons that "time is running out" and he is "not prepared to wait" if the provinces balk.

Trudeau declined to give details, promising legislation before the end of June that would spell out plans for giving provinces a say in Senate and Supreme Court appointments and the country a set of federally-binding human and language rights.

Once introduced, that legislation would be referred to a joint Commons-Senate committee and the premiers for discussion, then returned for amendment and possible passage by July 1 next year.

Broader reforms, including the long-contentious issue of transferring the country's underlying constitutional law from Britain with a formula for changing it at home, would follow.

The proposals were designed to smooth Ottawa's relations with the provinces and provide a "renewal of the Canadian federation" at a time of internal threats from a separatist government in Quebec.

Trudeau's announcement represents the third major effort during his 10 years in office to reform the country's underlying law — the 1867 British North America Act that remains a British statute.

The proposals merely gave an appearance of action, said Opposition Leader Joe Clark. They were couched in paternalistic language, set deadlines that have not been accepted by provinces and could conceivably deepen divisions in the country.

New Democratic Leader Ed Broadbent was equally critical, saying the proposals ignore economic inequality in Canada.

Premier Bill Bennett was cautious in his response to Trudeau's constitutional proposals. Bennett said the proposals lack specifics on which he could comment in detail, but said it appears as if the areas that needed covering will be dealt with.

The prime minister set two conditions for constititonal reform:

Canada must continue to be a genuine federation with a constitution that retains a federal Parliament "with real powers which apply to all parts of the country, and provincial legislatures with "equally real powers within their respective territories."

A "charter of basic rights and freedoms" must be included in any new constitution, a charter that would "apply equally to both orders of government."

Government officials say Trudeau plans to act on those areas he has carved out as national before next year and the anticipated Quebec referendum on provincial independence. Then, providing the referendum fails and he is re-elected, Trudeau would move on a broader range of reforms.

During the first stage, he proposes to change the Senate to a so-called House of the Federation with provinces having a say in the selection of members.

The government is expected to limit the provincial role to nominations, not appointments.

Trudeau also says the provinces should have a voice in appointments to the Supreme Court, a body that would be given constitutional status for the first time in the country's 111-year history.

Rent Hike In Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial housing ministers disagreed Monday over whether to support a federal proposal to raise rents on about 150,000 low-income and senior citizen public housing units across Canada.

The federal proposal to make all low-income families and senior citizens pay 25 per cent of income for rent would mean increases of about 50 per cent for those with lowest incomes.

Rents for public housing in most provinces now range between 16.7 and 25 per cent of income.

J. W. Dinn, Newfoundland's minister of municipal affairs and housing, emerged from the four-hour meeting saying he was absolutely opposed to increasing rents.

Claude Bennett, Ontario minister of housing, said there were some differences of opinion.

Chretien Ends Mystery For Quebec Taxpayers

OTTAWA (CP)-The mystery of how Quebec will be get its money under the federal budget was solved Monday night when Finance Minister Jean Chretien made an off-the-cuff announcement he will stick with his plan to give taxpayers in the province 1977 income tax rebates.

For two weeks, Chretien resisted all Opposition and press efforts to get him to specify exactly how Quebecers will be paid. All he would say was he would decide between his early plan of 1977 tax rebates or a second plan to cut 1978 income taxes.

The rebate is to give Quebecers the money the province would have received if it had agreed to a federal government proposal to make an across-the-board cut in its eight-per-cent sales tax.

The minister's announcement as the Commons was adjourning for the night means $85 cheques to the majority of Quebec taxpayers could be in the mail within a few weeks.

However, taxpayers will not keep the federal money long. Their provincial government has already announced it will take it from them in some manner — higher provincial income tax or some more "imaginative" method.

The Quebec government told the federal government in a letter last week it is willing to accept either 1977 rebates or 1978 tax cuts. Chretien said at the time he preferred the 1977 rebate formula but he resolutely refused to close the door on the second method.

Before The Judge

Three youths received a total of 225 hours of community service work after pleading guilty in provincial court Monday to attempted theft.

Judge William Ostler also handed 20-year-old Christopher Leo Warnock and 18-year-old Charles David Warnock, both of 2842 Lakehurst Drive, and 17-year-old Peter Witzaney, 2807 Sooke Lake Road, suspended sentences and placed each on six months probation.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court the trio was caught inside a parked truck on Feb. 13 but fled in Witzaney's vehicle. The truck owner discovered a lead-in wire had been ripped off in an attempt to steal a Citizens' Band radio valued at $150.

* * *

A 52-year-old man who had what Lang described as a horrible record was fined $300 after changing his plea on a charge of refusing a breath test demand Feb. 8.

MacKenzie applied to change the plea on behalf of Allan McCrea Stewart, 1235 Balmoral, and Lang stayed a charge of impaired driving against Stewart.

Court was informed Stewart was stopped at about 12:45 a.m., Feb. 8, and taken to the Victoria city police station where he refused to take the breath test.

Lang read out Stewart's record which included a conviction for impaired driving on March 5, 1965, in Edmonton for which he was fined $150, convictions for impaired driving and driving while suspended Jan. 20, 1966, for which he was fined $100 on each count, conviction Nov. 1, 1969, for intoxicated driving, for which he received a 15-day jail sentence, another conviction for impaired driving Dec. 2, 1969, for which he was jailed two months, and convictions Feb. 18, 1971, for impaired driving and driving while suspended for which he received 30-day, concurrent sentences.

A man who said it has cost $10,000 to find out he has an alcohol problem was fined $1,000 and ordered to take the Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society program.

Lang said Kostiuk was driving north on Douglas at about 12:45 a.m., May 28, when his vehicle went out of control and smashed into a sign, causing $4,000 damage to his car.

THE WORLD'S SIMPLEST CAMERA NOW HAS A GUARANTEE TO REPLACE PICTURES YOU DON'T LIKE.

"The colors are great, but you blinked."

"That's a great shot, if you like feet."

You'll find it's tough to take pictures you don't like with a camera as simple as the OneStep. But if you should make mistakes, it's nice to know these pictures are now guaranteed for six months with the purchase of any Polaroid OneStep.

Once you've got the guarantee, save up ten pictures you're unhappy with and send them to Polaroid. We'll send you a coupon for a new pack of our faster developing SX-70 film plus another guarantee.

We think this offer is so good, we've made it available on all Polaroid cameras. Ask your dealer for details.

You'll like the simplicity of the OneStep. But just in case something goes wrong, it's comforting to be guaranteed a whole pack of second chances.

Take in Another Notch

Decentralization of power in Canada, more fiscal resources for municipalities, school boards and regional boards, and a tightening of belts by everyone was urged Monday night by Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith.

He was commenting at a council meeting on California's approval of Proposition 13 which will slash local property taxes.

Smith, who said there is no simplistic solution to the problem of heavy taxation, said it is surprising to see the reaction in B.C. to "that most delightfully lunatic state."

But he said taxes here are too high and the country is over-governed.

Ald. Doug Watts said there is a message in the California vote and politicians here should look hard at on-going commitments such as staff hiring and debt. He said the suggestion for a taxpayers revolt is irresponsible and he opposed wild lopping of services.

The comments came after H.S. Thuillier, 2424 Beach Drive, congratulated council on reducing the tax rate by one mill. But he noted that this was more than cancelled out by a regional district increase of 1.76 mills and that his taxes are up 20 per cent because of the provincial assessment legislation.

SCs Lead Tax Cuts — Wolfe

QUALICUM BEACH, (CP) — Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Monday there is no need for a property tax revolt in B.C. because the provincial government is already leading the way in cutting costs and taxes.

Wolfe told a local service club that property taxes are much less in B.C. than in California where voters have just approved Proposition 13 which will cut property taxes up to 60 per cent.

Wolfe noted some radicals are suggesting people stop paying taxes.

"Let's hope that doesn't happen. That would cause terrific social upheaval — as the people in California are going to find out.

"We reduced over-all B.C. taxes by $250 million this year, and principal among these, of course, was a permanent sales tax reduction of two per cent."

OAK BAY APPROVES ATTACK ON LITTLE GREEN INVADERS

Oak Bay council approved a committee's plans Monday night to attack the green spanworm infestation of deciduous trees.

Ald. John Goult, noting a lone citizen's opposition to municipal use of the low-toxicity insecticide methoxychlor, suggested the committee take another look at its recommendations.

He said council didn't know the effects of mass-spraying of trees on other insects and animals.

But Ald. Doug Watts said most of the points raised had been considered by the committee although the committee had an open mind and was prepared to look at the letter.

He said Oak Bay won't be embarking on a mass spraying campaign but rather a selective spraying which will begin with the identification of the worst-affected trees. These will be the only ones treated next spring, he said.

Council has $4,000 in this year's budget to spend on acquiring supplies of methoxychlor and could raise another $10,000 from next year's budget. This would cover spraying of 300 oak trees and boulevard plums and cherries which have been badly infested with the green bug.

In other business, council referred to Committee A a request by Oak Bay Manor to allow it to have 150 personal and intermediate care patients, up from 90, without rezoning.

But two aldermen, Watts and Goult, said the request is impossible and the manor must comply with the bylaw.

Manor president Neil Cook said the provincial Adult Care Facilities Licensing Board has granted an interim licence for the 150. The manor has a further application to extend this to 334 persons.

Victoria MLA Charles Barber's plea for support for a guarantee from the provincial government that whenever civil service jobs are shifted from the capital, similar jobs and equivalent payroll be moved here, got short shrift.

Although Goult said he shared Barber's views on this subject and that transfers of jobs will have a detrimental effect, Ald. Neil Swainson said the primary responsibility of the cabinet is to see that B.C. is administered as efficiently as possible.

Council quickly agreed to receive and file Barber's letter.

A mobile discotheque at Willows Beach was ruled out by aldermen — but some of the surplus logs will be cleared.

Harry Sharma, 218-1300 Yates, asked permission to play his mobile disco free of charge this Saturday between 2 and 6 p.m.

But Watts said the Oak Bay Tea Party is enough of an intrusion for residents and council refused permission.

Council agreed with a committee recommendation to spend $3,000 to haul away excess logs which piled up during the winter and spring.

At least one alderman got a metric lesson when he protested that the low bid for asphalt paving was up more than 25 per cent over last year.

The bid was $21.97 per tonne compared with $16.28 per ton the previous year.

Goult was told by administrator Bill Craven that the new price includes 10 per cent more asphalt.

A tonne is 1,000 kilograms or about 2,200 pounds compared with the (short) ton of 2,000 pounds. (Just to confuse things, the imperial ton is 2,240 pounds).

Council Honors Heroic Scout

Ian Stuart, 2020 Penzance, was given a Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Medallion by Mayor Brian Smith in a ceremony at the opening of council's business.

Smith said Stuart rescued his cousin John Ryan of Denver on Aug. 5, 1977, after he fell down a cliff on Mount Maxwell on Salt Spring Island. He was assisted by a brother.

Stuart, who earlier received a bronze cross for gallantry from the Boy Scouts, is a member of the 5th Cedar Hill Venturers.

Battering Case Gets Attention

An NDP MLA Monday told the legislature of a case where a Prince Rupert man twice severely beat his wife — once at home and later in hospital.

Rosemary Brown, the member for Vancouver Burrard, said it's time Attorney-General Garde Gardom intervened on the victim's behalf.

A spokesman in the attorney-general's ministry said today inquiries have been started into the alleged incident.

Brown, the NDP's human resources critic, said the woman is permanently paralyzed from the waist down and should receive criminal injuries compensation — something she's apparently not entitled to because her attacker is her husband.

Brown recounted for the legislature the horrifying tale of the 33-year-old mother of two.

Last Aug. 13, neighbors called an ambulance which picked up the naked, unconscious woman suffering massive facial and head injuries, possible broken neck and burns to her abdomen, chest, arms and face.

Doctors later said the burns could have been caused by ropes or a heated knife.

She was bleeding from her eyes when taken to the hospital.

The victim's injuries were so severe she was flown to Vancouver General Hospital.

The woman is now recovering in G. F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre and will likely be able to return to Prince Rupert in December.

However she is permanently crippled, has suffered vision impairment and may have suffered brain damage.

The only person who can lay a charge is the victim herself but she has been too ill and as a result, no charges have been laid.

Efforts by relatives to get police action have been unsuccessful.

Relatives have also been unable to get statements from ambulance drivers and photographs from the hospital for a civil case, she said.

Relatives were told if the woman died, there would be a full coroner's inquest.

"It seems the only way for her to get justice is to die," Brown said.

The request was taken as notice by Premier Bill Bennett on behalf of Gardom who was absent from the house.

Bennett also took on notice a question directed to the absent Labor Minister Allan Williams to look into the possibility of the woman getting criminal injuries compensation.

Brown also said the 33-year-old woman would like to have her children back. They are currently in care of her mother.

She asked Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm to see if the woman could receive 24-hour-a-day homemaker service to help her care for her children.

Vander Zalm said he would look into the matter.

U.S. FIRM BUYING HUSKY OIL

EDMONTON (CP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles and Husky Oil Ltd. of Calgary announced today that the directors and managements of both companies have agreed to the acquisition of Husky by Occidental.

The statement said Husky has decided to turn down an offer by Petro-Canada, Canada's federal oil corporation.

panel as failing on esthetic grounds.

"And there's not been a lot of evidence of the Coast Guard addressing itself to the criticisms of the advisory design panel," said Greenhalgh.

In the meantime, he added, it appears Transport Canada intends to proceed with the development despite Victoria's objections.

Greenhalgh said his real concern now is over what's to come on the site. The warehouse is to be followed by an office building and a stores complex, and the city has yet to receive copies of plans for either.

In Ottawa, Victoria Conservation MP Allan Mckinnon charged Monday that Transport Minister Otto Lang cares so little for natural beauty that he would pave over Peggy's Cove, N.S., to take a wrinkle out of a highway.

The city has spent much time and money — even turning away lucrative industrial projects which were not architecturally attractive — to restore and preserve the harbor, he said. The federal government should not ruin it.

A concrete building would fit in better with the community and would even cost less than the proposed metallic building, yet the transport department has refused to consider it, McKinnon said.

Charles Lapoint, Lang's parliamentary secretary, said the federal government is a good corporate citizen of Victoria and has obtained building permits for every phase of construction of coast guard office building, warehouse, wharf, helicopter hangar and landing strip.

"I found a float (loose rock sample) two weeks ago, examined it under a microscope and said, this is it," he added. He did some more prospecting, conducted further lab tests which he claims are a trade secret and Monday confirmed the samples as gold telluride.

It was gold in telluride form which gave Kalgoorlie in Western Australia its bonanza strike which yielded $3.5 billion, he explained.

Hopton said he realizes it would be impossible to have a full-scale gold mining industry in downtown Victoria, but it might be feasible to sink a single shaft to 2,000 or 3,000 feet.

After all, he noted, subterranean Nanaimo is riddled with tunnels which are relics of its pioneer coal mining era.

Young said today if it is gold, it's good news for the city.

"We should remember that the city got its start on the strength of the gold rush. Just about now when we're looking a little ragged around the edges we could do with another," was his tongue-in-cheek comment.

Scanners Pinpoint Hot Spots In Forests

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The people responsible for dousing forest fires in B.C. are becoming more sophisticated.

Last year, they began using an infra-red scanner, a heat detection device which can spot a potential fire when there are no telltale or visible signs of trouble.

Now they are experimenting with a lightning detector which can be used to predict fairly accurately where fires will start following a lightning storm.

The scanners are the same kind used in the Vietnam war. Helicopters or planes fly over an area and the detectors find the enemy by recording the heat from their bodies.

They now are used for more humane purposes like detecting fires or searching for missing people.

"They are also good for moose hunting," Hank Doerksen, of the forest service's protection division, says jokingly.

The service has 10 of the scanners — nine hand-held models called Probeyes and another larger model which must be mounted on a helicopter, plane or ground vehicle. It's called an Aga.

The Probeyes, made by the Hughes Aircraft Co., cost $7,000 to $8,000. The Aga, which has a wider range and is manufactured by a Swedish company, costs around $47,000.

Technically, what happens is the scanners convert the levels of infra-red radiation to corresponding levels of visible light. In this way they produce on a small viewing screen a display containing distinguishable temperature patterns of all objects in range.

A 35mm camera can also be attached to the Aga to get prints of the area being scanned.

The instruments are in fact so sensitive that in one instance, recalled by a member of Doerksen's division, a person using the scanner in a plane thought he had picked out a fire.

He went over the area twice but when he landed there was no sign of anything.

The only explanation was that the scanner had picked up the body heat from a deer.

The service tried out the scanners three years ago and then last year bought one for each forest district plus the Aga for general use.

Doerksen said in a recent interview the scanner has worked fine.

"It is not the ultimate, but it is a real good tool," he said.

So far the scanners have picked up about 300 fires smouldering undetected.

Doerksen says it isn't likely all 300 would have erupted into major blazes, but the average cost of a forest fire plus damages is between $4,000 and $8,000, so it is possible the scanners have saved taxpayers somewhere between $1 million and $2 million.

When there is a big fire, crews must be left at the site for as much as a week after the blaze is technically out to make sure the fire doesn't flare up.

But with the scanners, that non-productive use of manpower can be avoided because one sweep with the Probeye determines whether anything is smouldering out of sight.

★ ★ ★

The scanners are also handy in double checking old fires along rights-of-way slashed through the bush, as is being done by B.C. Hydro in the Parksville area.

It is not the latest fires that pose a problem but the earlier ones which the construction crews have assumed are out but are sometimes smouldering beneath the surface.

It is being tried in the Kamloops district and, says Doerksen, "it's coming along very nicely."

The theory is that once you get a detector which accurately records the number of air-to-ground lightning strikes, you can feed that information into a computer which also contains statistics for the number of forest fires started by lightning in the same area under similar weather conditions.

The result should be an accurate prediction of just how many fires are likely to start in a given area following a lightning storm.

Once the forest service has that information, it knows exactly where to send its spotter planes to pick up the fires before they spread.

"We like to think that eventually we will get accurate enough that, given an indication of storm activity, we will be able to predict for a district just how many fires they can expect," says Doerksen.

Return Of Strap Rejected

The closed-door discussion on bringing back corporal punishment was revealed by Trustee John Young who slipped confidential correspondence on the matter to the press.

She also said Young's action had placed the board in the awkward position of making a public statement on an in-camera issue.

Trustees feel the strap doesn't fit in with plans for alternative and special programs being studied by the board, Brice said.

Young, who has previously accused trustees of secretive behavior and given reporters copies of in-camera material, told the meeting corporal punishment is one of many matters placed on in-camera agendas that should be dealt with publicly.

The information he made public was a letter from Education Minister Pat McGeer inviting the board to request a return to the strap as a disciplinary measure.

McGeer said in his letter if the request was made by the district, the government will examine it.

The issue was triggered when a district teacher appealed to McGeer for a return to corporal punishment.

A copy of the teacher's letter was sent to the board by McGeer.

"The writer has made a most eloquent case for the return of discipline to a number of schools in your district," McGeer's letter said.

"Should your board wish to request special permission for use of the strap in Victoria schools I would be pleased to have the matter put before my colleagues in government."

Board To Meet At Sooke

The Capital Regional District board will visit Sooke on Wednesday and attend the official opening of the health and building inspection office at 3 p.m.

The remainder of the afternoon will be spent on tours of the area.

The Sooke Historical Society will entertain the directors at a salmon barbecue, and at 8 p.m. the board will meet in the Sooke Museum.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I would like to know where the money came from for the tomography scanner at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The cost was enormous. If my memory serves me right it was about $26 million. G.B.

A. You are referring to the co-axial tomography scanner which Health Minister Bob McClelland announced Feb. 28 would be located at the RJH. The hospital is now preparing for its installation and hopes it will be installed before the end of the year.

The cost of the equipment and its installation to make it operational is about $1 million. Most of this funding will come from the provincial government and a substantial donation is available from the hospital's auxiliary.

This will be the first total body scanner in British Columbia. The Vancouver General Hospital has a scanner but it covers only the head.

Q. What was the first mineral mined in British Columbia? Y.M.

A. Coal. It was first mined in 1835 on northern Vancouver Island.

$80,000 Damage In Fires

Saanich fire officials are investigating two overnight fires that caused more than $80,000 damage.

Fire Chief Art Fryer estimated the loss at $70,000 in a fire that broke out at about 5:30 p.m. Monday in a large two-storey home at 1988 Woodley owned by Dr. James Bell.

In the other fire, reported at 1:09 a.m. a garage, greenhouse and two sheds were gutted on adjoining properties at 1714 Jefferson and 4111 Torquay.

Fryer said Bell, his wife and their six children were home when they smelled smoke and discovered fire in the basement. They all got out safely.

The fire spread up a stairwell and into the kitchen before firemen extinguished it.

Fire officials aren't sure how the fire started but believe it may have been something left on a work bench as there was particularly heavy burning in that area.

Fryer said sparks from a smoke house might have started the second fire which gutted a small greenhouse at 1714 Jefferson owned by Salvatore Barone, and destroyed a garage, two sheds and large fir tree at 4111 Torquay, owned by Garry and Joan Moore.

40 FOOD STORES

$4m. Proposal For Reid Site

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

A $4 to $5 million dollar development to house 40 food stores is proposed by the provincial government for the former Reid property on the Inner Harbor below Bastion Square.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, responsible for the provincial capital commission, today told Victoria council's planning committee the city's support is crucial if the project is to go ahead.

The minister said he will take the scheme to businessmen and if they accept it, the project will be built and operated privately under lease.

Bawlf said the development's success depends on pedestrian traffic drawn to the site through Bastion Square.

"The key is to connect with the closest major retail centre, which is Eaton's," said Bawlf.

"Bastion Square would be the vital link," he said.

To facilitate the flow of pedestrians through the square, he said some major alterations would have to be made.

The committee agreed, and on a motion by Mayor Mike Young, decided to have a consultant report to council within two weeks on how to solve the pedestrian and traffic problems.

Bawlf proposed the square be modified to encourage people to cross over Wharf and enter the new buildings.

Wharf is a major traffic artery and any street level crossing will create difficulties.

Bawlf said the building proposed for the Reid site would be patterned similar to food retail outlets now functioning in the U.S.

"They are not farmers' markets, they are a new creature and are regarded as something of a phenomenon . . . I hope people won't regard this as a pie in the sky," said Bawlf.

He said there would be possibly 40 separate retailers in the building, including grocery stores, delicatessens, fresh fish markets, and ethnic food outlets.

There are about 60 such centres in the U.S., he said, and they are tremendously successful.

Bawlf stressed a number of times he is not proposing an open market concept.

He added that the farmer's market in Seattle, for example, is trying to evolve into the type of facility he is proposing.

Bawlf said he wanted to see construction start in October, with completion possibly by next summer.

He urged the committee to indicate immediately its position on the development.

Bawlf later indicated he was pleased with the decision to seek a consultant's report, and said if the questions regarding pedestrian flow and traffic are resolved in two weeks the timing would be perfect.

Explosives Stolen

A spokesman said the shells, used to drive nails into concrete, are about three-eighths of an inch long and look like a .22-calibre bullet.

Police suspect the culprits are juveniles.

"If they start playing around with them and bang them on rocks it could really be dangerous," he said.

Anyone finding the shells, which bear the brand name Hilti, should call police at 385-1441.

So Much for Promises

B.C. Hydro's promise that when it moved to Royal Oak, a downtown office would be maintained for people used to doing business in person, has gone by the boards.

Since May 15, people wanting to pay a Hydro bill have either had to drive three or four miles out of their way, pay by mail or at an authorized station, both of which add to the cost of electricity.

Spokesman Dorothy Tupper now says it was only a possibility Hydro would maintain an office in town, and points out that people who want to pay cash directly are a small minority.

"The largest percentage of our customers pay either by the enclosed, self-addressed envelope, or by pay stations or their bank," Tupper says.

A note to Victorians who would like to grow their own fresh produce but lack the basic wherewithal — a garden.

Of the more than 500 plots in the Victoria area, about 45 are still available. And the man in charge of the program, Charlie Carter, head of the ministry's horticulture branch, says it's not too late to plant seeds for a 1978 crop.

Most of the plots are on Gordon Head Road, but there are also some vacant at three other sites — Kenneth Street, west of Glanford Park; Kent Road, off Carey, and Wilkinson Road.

They're 1,000 square feet, have water available and rent for $20 a year.

Those eligible include apartment dwellers and residents living in homes where there is no access to suitable arable land.

The beer strike is making for quieter beaches.

In a normal weekend before the current brewery dispute, Saanich police's beach patrol could expect to seize about 30 cases of beer from youths partying on the beaches but last weekend the catch totalled a paltry 13 bottles.

"It was so quiet, you couldn't believe it," one officer said.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson Monday asked Premier Bill Bennett if he'd had any recent discussions with Volkswagen officials on the possibility of a plant being constructed in B.C.

Bennett merely smiled cryptically at Gibson's question.

Gibson says he understands industry sources are suggesting VW will soon build a second North America plant after the success of its operation on the East Coast.

The word is a western location is being suggested and B.C. is on the short list, Gibson told the house.

Having had an operation for a broken Achilles tendon, Nasmyth wore a walking cast that was due to come off in early May. When that day arrived, Nasmyth was half way across the world from Victoria attending a scientific institute in Ustaoset, Norway, miles from the nearest doctor.

But he was just as anxious to have the cast off as he was to avoid spending the better part of a day seeing a local physician.

"I just got in the bath, soaked it for about 30 minutes and cut it off with my Swiss army knife," Nasmyth said.

TORONTO (CP) — A surge in oil shares following the resumption of Husky Oil Ltd. trading cut a Toronto stock market decline to less than two points in active mid-afternoon selling.

Husky Oil jumped $11.88 to $47.63 a share on the sale of 121,383 shares following its resumption shortly after 1 p.m.

The intergrated oil company has announced its acceptance of an exchange offer from Occidental Petroleum Corp., whose Canadian subsidiary, Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. gained $1.00 to $21.25 a share on 6,950 shares.

Among other industrials, Cara Operations dropped 1⅛ to $19⅝, Jannock Ltd. B ⅞ to $17¼, Bow Valley Industries ⅞ to $30⅛, Domtar ¾ to $18 and Moore Corp. ¾ to $36½.

National Sea Products A advanced 3 to $32 on the sale of 525 shares, Costain Ltd. ¾ to $12¼, Ashland Oil Canada ⅝ to $21½, Westburne International ⅛ to $25½ and MICC Investments ¼ to $10¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower in an absence of hard economic news but amid continuing worries over rising interest rates and inflation.

There was some confusion over inflation forecasts. After Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said inflation this year wouldn't go below seven per cent, in line with earlier predictions, Fed Chairman G. William Miller said inflation would decline in 1978. Miller, who didn't give a specific forecast in a speech in Switzerland today, also said the United States is deeply committed to maintaining a strong dollar.

Federal National Mortgage, unchanged at $18¼, led the NYSE most active list. General Dynamics, which settled a cost-overrun dispute with the Navy and which gained 4⅜ in consolidated trading Monday, rose 4⅞.

Scott Paper dropped 1¾ to $17¾ after Atlantic Richfield announced there was no substance to a rumor it was considering taking over the paper maker.

The NYSE's index of all listed common stocks fell 0.[illegible] to 55.61.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally lower in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 658,800 shares traded, compared with 358,400 shares traded up to the same time Monday.

CP Ltd. slipped ⅛ to $19¼, Shell Canada ¼ to $13½, Provincial Bank of Canada ⅛ to $15⅜, Inco A ½ to $19, Alcan ⅝ to $31⅜ and Bank of Montreal ¼ to $21½. Mercantile Bank rose ¼ to $14¾, Carling O'Keefe 15 cents to $4.45, Simpson's Ltd. ⅛ to $5⅜ and Total Petroleum ⅛ to $11⅝.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market was moderately higher near the close of light trading.

Closing basic price of 1,000-ounce certificates in the Victoria area, according to the Scotiabank, $5.22 U.S. bid per troy ounce and $5.25 asked. Previous day $5.23 and $5.25.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 1,460 head consisting of a light run of slaughter steers, a heavy run of slaughter heifers and a normal run of slaughter cows.

All classes of slaughter cattle met a narrow demand with dull activity from local buyers. Slaughter steers traded $1 lower while slaughter heifers traded $2.50 lower. Slaughter cows continued to meet pressure at prices $3 lower. There were too few slaughter bulls on offer to establish market trends.

A1-2 steers over 1,000 pounds 64-65.70. A1-2 heifers over 850 pounds 61.50-63, under 850 pounds 61-62.25. D1-2 cows 39-40.50, D3 38-39, D5 36-38. Several packages of two weight heifers met moderate demand from local buyers at steady feeder prices. Good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 63-68.

More Takeovers Cleared

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has approved the takeover of eight more Canadian companies and establishment of five more new businesses by foreign interests after screening by the foreign investment review agency.

The approved proposals, announced Friday, are:

—Bestwood Industries Ltd., Vancouver, which is U.S.-controlled, to acquire the assets of Consumer Pallet Ltd. of Burnaby, B.C., and Coastline Wood Pallet and Container Ltd. Winfield, B.C., companies that make wooden pallets and bandsticks for use in the shingle industry.

—Bondhus Corp., Monticello, Minn., to take control of Mullin Tools Ltd., Brampton, Ont., which distributes specialty hand tools.

—Denmontan Resources Ltd., Toronto, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Denison Mines Ltd., and by Mega Montan Canada Ltd., Toronto, which is West German-controlled, to set up a business in Toronto called Denmonta-Mega Montan Joint Venture, to explore for and possibly mine uranium.

—Dewana Trading Ltd., Toronto, which is controlled from Singapore, to acquire certain assets of Jeyco Screw Products Ltd., Mississauga, Ont., a company that makes screw machine products for auto, marine, appliance and other uses.

—Dodd Richardson and Ainsley Ltd., owned 52 per cent by Canadians, 45 per cent by Initio Financial Corp. of the United States and three per cent by a U.S. citizen, to set up a business in Toronto for mail order sales of household products.

VSE-ASE Merger Eyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver and Alberta Stock Exchanges are gradually moving towards a partnership in the operation of the VSE Service Corp., says Brian Graves, chairman of the VSE.

Graves said both exchanges recognize "that we each have a role to play in the investment field. They're mainly oil and gas and we're interested mainly in mining."

The VSE Service Corp., a subsidiary company of the VSE, is principally engaged in computer work ranging from storage of securities to providing accounting services for member brokers.

Graves said the Alberta exchange may become a shareholder in the computer services. Alberta is expected to begin using the continuous net settlement system where the computers hold securities, as well as other services.

"The idea is that they will have their own terminals in Calgary that feed right into our system," Graves said.

Graves, 53, president of Brink Hudson and Lefever Ltd., a Vancouver-based brokerage firm, was elected VSE chairman for 1978-79 at the exchange's annual meeting.

Can Hockey's New Rich Kid Handle It?

In 1974, Vancouver Blazers signed a 19-year-old defenceman named Pat Price and handed him a six-year, $1.3 million contract to play in the World Hockey Association. He was the biggest bust since Dolly Parton.

On Sunday, en route from Vancouver to Edmonton in a private jet, another kid named Wayne Gretzky signed a seven-year personal services contract with Nelson Skalbania, who owns the WHA's Indianapolis Racers and, if you believe the stories, much of the western world. The contract is worth $1.75 million. If Gretzky flops as a hockey player he gets the money anyway. Wayne Gretzky is 17 years old.

It is, by any measure, a tremendous gamble. Because while there are those in hockey who insist that Gretzky is the next Bobby Orr, there are others who say he isn't; that he is too slow, that he's not big enough, that he controls the puck well and has some dazzling moves — but that once the pros see them a couple of times they'll shut them off, as the Russians and Swedes did in the world junior tournament last year.

Gretzky is a product of the instant star system — the system that all but destroyed Pat Price. And Price was two years older. What, then, will it do to Wayne Gretzky — and why did Skalbania figure he was worth that kind of money?

The answer is simply that Skalbania has grown weary of the cold war with the National Hockey League. He wants the shooting to start again — an all-out attack to force the older league into a merger position. And the way to do that is to way the old American Football League forced the National Football League to take it into the lodge.

* * *

In the AFL's case, it ignored NFL players, went directly to the colleges, and signed all the top young graduating quarterbacks. It poured money on them — money in amounts up to then considered ludicrous. And eventually the NFL had to look at the books and say "Look, it's cheaper for us to let them in than to throw away our profits meeting their bids for players."

Now that the NHL is firmly committed to leaving junior players alone until they graduate, the WHA's course of attack is clear: zip into the juniors with open cheque books, skim the cream of the juniors a year or more before they graduate, and wait for the NHL to do the mathematics.

Skalbania has already done them. He figures it's cost each NHL club $1 million per year in salary and bonus escalations made necessary by the competitive presence of the WHA. Given a merger, he suggests, the bonuses for first-round picks would drop from $200,000 to $20,000, and the yearly salaries from $150,000 to $50,000.

They could be scare figures, hung out there to worry the ones like Gretzky into signing now lest the tap be shut off before it's their turn at the trough. But, figures aside, the theory seems valid. It remains to be seen whether the NHL buys it or if the rest of the WHA is prepared to go the Skalbania route.

Bassett, too, knows about personal service deals. He gave them to Jim Kiick, Larry Csonka and Paul Warfield in his late lamented venture into the World Football League. The league folded, but at last report the three were still living off the money.

But in all this talk about money and raids and shooting wars the big question remains unanswered, as it must in every case: How will it effect Wayne Gretzky, now a millionaire at 17?

* * *

Price couldn't handle it in 1974.

He totalled a $27,000 Ferrari. He sprained an ankle running down a hallway in his elevator shoes. He alienated himself with coaches and players alike. He got too much too soon, and he lacked the tools to handle it. The smartest thing he did was to realize it.

After one year he walked out on the contract, when he could have had the money just for showing up each season. He joined New York Islanders, spent a year in the minors at Fort Worth, and finally made it back to the big leagues — a journeyman defenceman making far less money, but a maturing kid who could hold his head up.

There will be an acceptance problem for Wayne Gretzsky — and quite possibly a talent problem.

The star system has hyped him beyond belief. Before he'd completed his first year in junior hockey, Sports Illustrated was calling him "the most exciting junior hockey player since Guy Lafleur."

It didn't stop there. The fact that he is a poor checker, that his speed — which Gretzky himself calls "brutal" — the fact that he does not have great size, are all brushed aside as being of no consequence.

"Gretzky can handle a puck now," the magainzine says, "as well or better than anyone at any level."

How are journeymen professionals going to react to a kid with that kind of reputation making that kind of money? Wayne Gretzky may be rich but life isn't going to be easy. Pat Price could tell him that.

Top Scorers Here

Four of the top snipers in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League will be on hand tonight at Esquimalt Sports Centre as Victoria McDonalds take on Burnaby Cablevision.

Gametime is 8 p.m.

Dan Perrault of Burnaby is the current scoring leader with 63 points, including 26 goals, and clubmates John Swan and Ken Sim are locked in a tie for second place with 55 points each.

Rookie Wayne Reeve of Victoria is fourth in the points race with 51.

Meanwhile, Mark Tuura scored five goals and assisted on three others to lead New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies to a 22-16 win over visiting Coquitlam J-Hawks in league action Monday night.

ONE GAMES TEAM SETTLED; ONE TO GO

Rocks Win a Bitter Berth

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks won a berth in the Commonwealth Games Monday night but the effects of the battle may simmer on.

The Shamrocks scored a convincing 20-11 victory over Nanaimo Timbermen in a Western Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena to earn the trip to Edmonton, Aug. 9-10. The game was rescheduled from last week, because of the death of Shamrock general manager Norm Kowalyk.

Lacrosse is a demonstration sport at the Games and another WLA team has yet to qualify. It will be one of three teams, New Westminster, Vancouver or the Timbermen.

But the second-team berth is up in the air. Because, at a late hour Monday night, Burton still wasn't quite certain what tie-breaker method would be used if two clubs end up tied in points by this weekend or, three teams end in a tie. It could happen.

The Shamrocks, by winning, took a three-point lead in the WLA stakes, but the bitterness that is the rivalry between these two Island clubs, a number of the Nanaimo players hailing from Victoria, spilled over.

And it's too late for that "before someone gets hurt" bit. Someone has. Shamrocks' Ron MacNeil was sitting on the bench with an ice pack on his knee when the game was over.

Coach Nirmal Dillon of the Shamrocks was furious He charged Nanaimo coach Ken Alexander with sending out Gord Racette to "get MacNeil" because MacNeil was engaged in a point scoring battle with Ken's brother, Kevin.

MacNeil admitted that he had taken three blows to his knee from Racette on faceoffs; that he had warned the referee to watch Racette before the last faceoff on which it happened; that the referee said he would; and still there was no penalty.

"That kind of stuff isn't needed in the game," said McNeil.

Meanwhile, Ken Alexander charged that "I don't normally complain about referees, but we have had Sid Lougheed for the last three games and the refeeeing has been just terrible."

That was immediately before Alexander was hustled away by Burton and likely given a talking to for speaking out of turn.

The Timbermen started quickly with two goals in the first two minutes and 23 seconds and were on top 3-0 at the 8:13 mark.

And it wasn't until two minutes later that the Shamrocks struck back, and hard.

With the Timbermen playing shorthanded, Rick Baker, a former Timberman, got his first of three goals, on a power play; and that triggered the Irish.

In the space of two minutes and 43 seconds they rammed in a total of five goals and had a lead that actually was never threatened thereafter.

If there was a key moment, it occurred when Dave Thomson of the Rocks took a tripping penalty at 19:16.

Before Thomson returned, MacNeil was to score a shorthanded goal, his first of four, and Chris Hall knocked in his first of two shorthanded goals and his second and third of the game. This gave the Rocks a 7-3 first-period lead.

With the start of the second period, Art Webster of the Irish drew a penalty and the Rocks were two men short. No matter. The Rocks held off the Timbermen and, before Webster could get back, Hall had his second shorthanded effort.

To put the icing on the victory cake, with Dennis Somner of the Rocks off on a penalty, Webster pulled the short-handed trick, it was 9-3 and the Rocks were long gone and, at the period's end, had a 14-5 bulge.

Things opened up in the final period and, in between the scoring, a few old scores were being settled and, unfortunately, a few new ones opened up.

As it was, MacNeil topped the Rocks with his four goals and two assists. Hall and Rick Baker each had three. Gerry Cadwallader, Joe McCrea and Charn Dhillon each scored a pair with singles going to Norm Baker, who also had seven assists in a big night; Dan Green, Ranjit Dillon and Webster. For Hall, his third goal was the 100th of his career.

Next game: Tonight — Coquitlam at Vancouver

LYING STUNNED, Houston Astros' catcher Reggie Baldwin is checked out by home plate umpire Ed Vargo (right) after Dave Parker of Pittsburgh Pirates (39) crashed into him while scoring in fifth inning of National League baseball game Monday night in Houston. Parker had stolen second base, taken third and then raced home — all on a second base error. Parker stayed in game, which Houston eventually won 6-5, but Baldwin was replaced. (AP Wirephoto).

Underpaid Guidry Wins 10th

By Associated Press

With all those gold-plated arms on the New York Yankee pitching staff, a player who is earning less than any of them has emerged as the diamond of the bunch.

Ron Guidry doesn't command the lofty salary of, say, a Catfish Hunter, Don Gullett or Sparky Lyle. But he currently sports the richest record in major league baseball.

"He's the best we've seen in the American League," Oakland manager Jack McKeon said Monday night after the unbeaten Guidry won his 10th straight game with a 2-0 triumph over the A's."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox beat California Angels 10-9, Texas Rangers defeated Kansas City Royals 6-5, Baltimore Orioles beat Seattle Mariners 5-4, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Detroit Tigers 7-4 and Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland Indians 1-0. Rain postponed the Minnesota-Toronto game.

In National League action, former Yankees pitcher Ken Holtzman combined with Rick Reuschel on a four-hitter to help Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Houston Astros rallied with a six-run eighth inning to overcome a club-record seven errors and beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5, Dusty Baker's grand-slam home run led Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-5 win over Philadelphia Phillies, Ed Halicki pitched a one-hitter to help San Francisco Giants beat Montreal Expos 1-0, Atlanta Braves defeated St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 on a sixth-inning home run by Jeff Burroughs and San Diego Padres beat New York Mets 3-2.

Carlton Fisk's single with the bases loaded in the ninth led Boston over California.

Larry Harlow singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning to lead Baltimore over Seattle. Billy Smith opened the seventh with a single, finishing Seattle starter Jim Colburn. Smith was sacrificed to second and, following a walk to Mark Belanger, scored on Harlow's hit off reliever Enrique Romo.

Lions Trim To 50 For Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions, who open their Canadian Football League pre-season schedule tonight in Vancouver against Montreal Alouettes, reduced their roster to 50 players Monday by releasing two Canadian defensive backs.

Hal Lund and Bob Hogan were the players released, but general manager Bob Ackles said the two still may make an appearance in one of the Lions' exhibition games.

"We've got an overload in several positions," he said. "We've got several guys we feel can play in the CFL but unfortunately they're caught in the numbers game here."

Tonight's game, beginning at 8 p.m., will be broadcast over CFAX (1070) and CKNW (980).

Favorite in World Cup? Italy's Boss Likes Dutch

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Many soccer fans believe Italy will win the World Cup. But Enzo Bearzot, manager of the Italian team, thinks it could be the Netherlands.

"The Dutch are the No. 1 team in our group in the second round," Bearzot said.

"The Dutch can play any game. They know how to attack, and they know how to slow down the game to keep it under control. If they need a tie, they stack up their players in midfield and sit there for 90 minutes."

Italy, the Netherlands, West Germany and Austria are in Group A, playing for a place in the final, scheduled for Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium June 25.

Wednesday's games: Group A—West Germany vs. Italy at River Plate; Austria vs. Holland at Cordoba. Group B—Argentina vs. Poland at Rosario; Brazil vs. Peru at Mendoza.

The other finalist will be the winner of Group B, comprising Argentina, Brazil, Peru and Poland.

The professional know-how of the Dutch team, praised by Bearzot, took it to second place in the World Cup of 1974, even without Johann Cruyff, the superstar of that tournament who has now retired.

Many critics believe the Netherlands' best soccer in Argentina is still to come. The Dutch played all their first-round games at Mendoza, on a soft field pitted with holes.

In the second round, they will play twice at Cordoba and once at Buenos Aires, both firm fields which should suit their speedy style.

"On that field at Mendoza, you need to play with a square ball," Dutch coach Ernest Happel quipped.

The eight teams still in contention have two days of rest in which to treat injured players before starting the second round Wednesday.

Italy is one of the worst hit teams. Mauro Bellugi, a defender, has a leg injury and is very unlikely to play against West Germany at the River Plate Stadium here. Five other stars — defender Gaetano Scirea, midfielder Romeo Benetti and forwards Roberto Bettega, Paolo Rossi and Franco Piusio — are nursing injuries. Leopoldo Luque, star Argentine striker, has his arm in a cast and may not be able to play again for the rest of the championships. He will cetainly miss the game against Poland at Rosario on Wedesday.

Lafleur, Gainey Win Awards; Bossy, Potvin, Goring Top Poll

MONTREAL (CP) — Two members of Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders were named Monday night as winners of National Hockey League individual awards for the 1977-78 season.

Right-winger Guy Lafleur of the Canadiens, who captured the scoring championship and Art Ross Trophy for the third consecutive season, was the winner of the Hart Memorial Trophy as the NHL's most-valuable player.

Bob Gainey of the Canadiens became the first winner of the Frank J. Selke Trophy as the league's best defensive forward.

Mike Bossy of the Islanders was named the NHL's rookie of the year and will receive the Calder Memorial Trophy and Dennis Potvin grabbed the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenceman.

Butch Goring of Los Angeles Kings won the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy for best combining good sportsmanship and a high degree of playing ability. Earlier this spring Goring received the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy, given annually to the player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

Lafleur, the first Montreal player to win three scoring titles, finished the season with 132 points including a league-leading 60 goals.

He is only the second Canadian to win the Hart Trophy in two successive seasons.

Former great Howie Morenz won in 1930-31 and 1931-32 after winning the award in 1927-28. The last Montreal player to win the Hart Trophy twice was centre Jean Beliveau in 1955-56 and 1963-64.

Lafleur received 145 points in the voting, 46 more than runner-up Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders. Darryl Sittler, captain of Toronto Maple Leafs, was third with 67 points.

NEELD REJECTED IN BUFFALO BID

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A United States district court judge has ruled against a one-eyed hockey player in his bid to force Buffalo Sabres to let him try out for their National Hockey League team.

Greg Neeld, a 23-year-old defenceman drafted by the Sabres in 1975, contended that an NHL bylaw barring from competition persons with one eye violates a state law prohibiting discrimination against the blind.

Judge John Elfvin dismissed the suit on grounds that Neeld, who has use of his right eye, is not legally blind.

It was the third time judges have dismissed Neeld's suits against the Sabres and the league.

Dorothy D One to Beat

She fired a 78 on her home course to take the laurels.

Clubmate Shirley Naysmith was second with an 83 and Elsie Saunders of Gorge Vale and Heather Stewart of Uplands were tied for third at 86.

Match play was scheduled to open this morning.

Betty Forgie of Victoria, slated to play DeGirolamo in the opening match, finished in a tie for 16th spot with May Browets of Glen Meadows and Marg McGowan of Metchosin but won the final championship berth on a countback.

Liz Hawes of Victoria and Jean George of Glen Meadows tied at 76 and captured the two zone berths for the British Columbia national handicap awards tournament for 23-36 handicappers at Chilliwack in August.

Jr. Title Won By Cedar Hill

It ended Monday afternoon when Cedal Hill clinched the title with a 5½-3½ victory over Victoria on the Saanich course. That left Cedar Hill undefeated over the five-week schedule.

Uplands, meanwhile, dropped a 5-4 decision at Colwood but finished second ahead of third-place Gorge Vale, a 7-2 winner at Glen Meadows.

$1.75 Million for Gretzky

Canadian Press

The palace revolt that Ben Hatskin expected has taken place with the signing of 17-year-old Wayne Gretzky by Indianapolis Racers owner Nelson Skalbania.

Skalbania announced Monday he has signed Gretzky, a scoring star last season with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League, to a personal services contract.

The contract was reported worth $1.75 million for seven years.

Hatskin, World Hockey Association chief executive officer, has spoken recently against signing of such under-age juniors but he has hinted he feared such a move by some of the league owners.

Hatskin met last month with Iona Campagnolo, federal minister of fitness and amateur sport, and was warned that the government would object to any such signings.

Jim McAuley, president of the Sault Greyhoundq, said Monday his first reaction was to shut down the club.

"In Wayne's contract with us there is a clause that he has to pay us $20,000 should he turn professional before his junior eligibility is over," said McAuley. "So, we get $20,000. Look what we stand to lose in gate receipts with the likes of him gone.

Gretzky, who scored 70 goals and had 112 assists with Sault Ste. Marie last season, arrived in Indianapolis Sunday night with Skalbania and with his agent, Gus Badali of Toronto.

Both Badali and Skalbania said the contract makes Gretzky the richest junior player ever.

At five-foot-eight and 150 pounds, Gretzky was considered small even by major junior hockey standards and will have his work cut out for him in the professional league.

Gretzky, who first came to the attention of Canadian scouts at age eight when he scored 378 goals in 68 games, will report to the Racers training camp in Indianapolis on Sept. 11.

Time Out For NHL Teams; Stricter Freeze Puck Rule

MONTREAL (CP) — There will be a few rules changes in force in the National Hockey League next season, most designed to speed up the game.

But the NHL has also decided to go the way of other professional sports and now has one official time out per team per game.

"Max McNab of Washington brought up the matter," said Scotty Morrison, the NHL's referee-in-chief. "It was noted that we were the only sport in which a coach could not legally communicate with his players in a crucial moment.

"Each team will now be allowed one 30-second time out in a game and the coach will signal when he wants to take it."

The NHL decided to impose stricter rules on freezing the puck, especially when it is done by goaltenders.

"A minor penalty shall be imposed on a goalkeeper, who when his body is outside the boundaries of his own crease area, deliberately falls on or gathers the puck into his body, or who holds or places the puck against any part of the goal or against the boards.

"Last year, the rule read 'and when the puck is behind the goal line.' We have deleted the words when the puck is behind the goal line.

"A minor penalty shall be imposed on any player, including the goalkeeper, who holds, freezes or plays the puck with his stick, skates or body in such a manner to cause a stoppage in play unless he is actually being checked by an opponent.

"Last year, it was just restricted to along the boards."

"If the goalkeeper rushes out of his net and he is not being checked and he falls on the puck, he will be penalized. This will also apply to him in his crease."

A rule was passed to prevent teams from putting extra markings on the ice without the consent of the NHL.

This should prevent Harold Ballard, the controversial owner of Toronto Maple Leafs, from displaying his famous tigers next season. Ballard is also owner of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League and had the Tigers painted on the ice at Maple Leaf Gardens after he purchased the football club during the winter.

The NHL rules committee revised the regulation governing players receiving sticks from the bench to replace a broken stick.

Under the old rule, a bench minor was assessed a team for throwing the stick on the ice and if a player picked it up, he received a minor and a misconduct. The misconduct now has been dropped.

CANADIANS RUN ONE, TWO IN 100

BUDAPEST (AP)— Canadian women sprint stars Patty Loverock and Marjorie Bailey ran one-two in the women's 100 dash at an international track meet, the Hungarian news agency MTI reported Monday.

Loverock's time was 11.70 seconds to 11.84 for Bailey. Both girls, veteran Canadian Olympians, live in Vancouver. Hungarian Iren Orosz, third in the event, was timed in 12 seconds.

Steve Riddick of the U.S. won the men's 100 metres in 10.30, ahead of American Jim Colling, 10.43, and Marek Bodinski of Poland, 10.46.

HOLMES JOINS KINGS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Holmes, the International League's second-leading scorer with 48 goals at Saginaw last season, has signed a National Hockey League contract with Los Angeles Kings.

Clouds Over Sandown Show a Silver Lining

It rained Monday afternoon prior to Sandown Raceway's nine-race card, cutting attendance to 707, but president Jim Keeling saw a silver lining.

The mutuel handle amounted to $49,828, not an impressive figure in itself but a sign that business is on the upswing. That was $2,000 more than was bet the first Monday of the 57-day standardbred meeting and represented a continuation of the steady increase in fan acceptance.

The handle for the first six days is $376,159, an average of of $62,693. That's not as much as officials had hoped for but it's improving as the meeting continues.

Biggest payoff of the day came in the featured eighth race when Brookson Lynda, who went off at 13 to 1, handled the wet track with ease, staying close to pace-setter Mitchs Burch and taking the lead on the clubhouse turn before holding off a stretch drive by Robbie Boy.

Brooksyn Lynda, a six-year-old mare driven by Clarence Gagnon, returned $28.50, $15 and $4.50 and combined with Robbie Boy for a $274.90 exactor.

The nine-race programs, a reduction of one from last week, will remain in effect Mondays and Wednesdays for the balance of the season with first post set back 20 minutes from 5:30 to 5:50 p.m.

WINGER FOR WINGS

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings have acquired right winger Sean Shanahan from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Shanahan scored 20 goals and assisted on 23 others in 66 games last season.

King and His Court Appearing Thursday

EDDIE FEIGNER

The "King", who has had a pitch clocked at 105 mph., and the other three players — shortstop Eddie Feigner Jr., designated hitter and occasional catcher John Bateman and first baseman Al Jackson — will face the Heywood Men's League All-Stars at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Royal Athletic Park.

Rookie Hurler Cools Rads

Rookie pitcher Rob Stenseth registered his first victory of the season Monday night at Lambrick Park, firing a two-hitter at third-place Capital Radiator in a 2-0 triumph. It was the second win of the year for the last-place dairymen.

Stenseth, who struck out eight and walked only one, got help from manager Bob Mabee who had three hits and drove in a run.

The only run Stenseth needed came in the first inning when Rob Stephens walked, took second on Mabee's single, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on George Fritz's sacrifice fly.

Jeff Owens 1-4 and Ross Barnett; Rob Stenseth 1-2 and Terry Armstrong.

China Mines Now Produce

TOKYO (AP) — China's biggest coal mines, which were badly damaged by the Tangshan earthquake of 1976 that killed at least 500,000 people, exceeded its production target for May by 43,500 tons, the Chinese news agency Hsinhua reported. Hsinhua did not give the total production for the mines at Kailuan, in northern China.

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul has approved a decree by which a Canadian, Brother Andre, was declared venerable, the first step toward his beatification and possible sainthood.

The decree declared that Brother Andre has practised all the virtues in heroic degree. According to Roman Catholic rules regarding beatification no public cult for Brother Andre is allowed, though private cult may exist, for example, praising his virtues and praying to him.

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said today a United States diplomat was arrested here last year with spy equipment, including poison, which she intended to pass on to a Soviet citizen.

The government newspaper Izvestia said U.S. Vice-Consul Martha Peterson was arrested near a bridge over the Moscow River in July, 1977, while carrying out an assignment for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

OTTAWA — It is up to Quebec to take whatever action is necessary in the matter of Delila Maschino, 26, who says she was forced to fly to Alg[illegible]a from Montreal to marry a man she never met, a government spokesman said Monday.

The woman was flown to Algeria April 24 by her brother to marry a man now 60 years old to whom she was betrothed at birth.

EDMONTON — Princess Margriet of the Netherlands was given a taste of Western Canadian culture Monday when she received a cowboy hat from Doug McDonald, president of the Royal Canadian Legion.

The 35-year-old princess, born in Ottawa during the German occupation of the Netherlands in the Second World War, addressed the second day of the Legion's national convention.

Speaking in French and English, Princess Margriet told the audience—mostly war veterans—that "my compatriots will never forget the role played by the Canadian armed forces in the liberation of Holland."

NONG KHAI, Thailand — Australian journalist John Everingham, who whisked his girl-friend out of Communist Laos in a daring underwater swim, was fined $79 and given a one-month suspended jail sentence today for violation of Thai immigration laws.

FATHER'S DAY, June 18

What to give Dad is often a problem because if he wants something, he goes out and buys it without delay. However, there are plenty of good books he hasn't read, and listed below are a few we think would be a good choice for Father's Day.

SPECIAL VALUE
GREAT BATTLE FLEETS

Oliver Warner. The stories of the great fleets of the world are told by a distinguished naval historian. The wide range of illustrations in colour and black and white capture the drama and heroics of the battles and the majority of the great ships and fleets at sea. This book was excellent value at $11.95, its regular price. Size approximately 9"x12". Special $4.99

DEAR ME — Peter Ustinov

A satirical and sophisticated autobiography. His childhood was fascinating, his war experiences hilarious, and his later years are about his plays and films with interesting appraisals of Olivier, Edith Evans, John Geilgud, Ralph Richardson, Charles Laughton, David Niven and others. $11.50

CROCKETTS VICTORY GARDEN — JAMES CROCKETT

One of our most popular gardening books. A month-by month guide to gardening that is informal and easy to understand. The author appears on PBS-TV, and the book was written in answer to thousands of viewers' requests. (softcover) $11.95

Reader's Digest Complete Do-It-Yourself Manual

Easy to understand, and illustrated throughout, this book explains power tools, plumbing, electricity, painting and decorating, working with wood, metals, concrete, glass or brickwork to name some of the subjects thoroughly covered. $24.95

TRUDEAU — George Kadwanski

No doubt many of us would like to know what our very private prime minister is really like. The author of this book talked with him frankly and informally over the course of eight hour-long interview sessions, and then interviewed Trudeau's staff, colleagues, friends and enemies, some of whom preferred to remain anonymous. The book gives us a most interesting insight into the life of the prime minister, and how the country is governed. $14.95

THE CORVETTE NAVY: — James B. Lamb
True Stories from Canada's Atlantic War

The author is a former Corvette officer and he has told the story of the corvettes and the men who sailed them in a way that does justice to their achievement and to their tremendous pride and sense of Comradeship. Told with humour and understanding, and with vivid descriptions, it makes a fascinating read for anyone — whether or not they have any connection with the navy. $10.95

THE TALL SHIPS
A Sailing Celebration

THE BRENDAN VOYAGE — Jim Severin

An extraordinary story of adventure — how a crew of five sailed a medieval boat, made of leather, across the Atlantic in the most uncomfortable and dangerous conditions one can imagine. Also, it is a story of absorbing historical and archaeological interest. Illustrated with sketches and magnificent colour photographs. $12.95

THE HONOURABLE SCHOOLBOY — John Le Carre

One of Le Carre's richest and most accomplished books. A grandly conceived plot played against the background of the Far East. Much more than a thriller. Reg. 10.95. Special $8.95

Oil Firms Prodded To Keep on Digging

Oil and natural gas exploration companies will be encouraged to drill deeper for deposits under legislation introduced Monday in the legislature.

Petroleum Resources Minister Jim Chabot said in an interview that amendments to the Petroleum and Natural Gas Act means the government will take over exploration leases if the companies don't drill deeper than known deposits in a given area.

"This stratigraphic revision is to take place at the end of the initial term of the lease, or Jan. 1, 1985," Chabot said, adding the proposals are similar to ones in effect in Alberta.

The minister said the new policy means there will be more turnover in land because some companies specialize in shallow deposits while others specialize in deeper ones. This will result in more exploration, more jobs, and — most likely — more discoveries.

The bill also includes provisions to shorten the life of a lease to five years from 10 years in areas to which the government feels there is reasonable access.

Leases were originally granted on a 21-year basis but were changed to 10 years in 1965.

The bill contains amendments to provide greater flexibility in the approval of locations for drilling wells on permits and subsequent leasing of locations.

Provision is also made for disposal of Crown reserve oil sand, oil sand products, oil shale and oil shale products.

"The oil and gas industry has been very active in the acquisition of land, exploration and drilling and these amendments will provide incentive to drill and test all potential oil and gas formations," Chabot said in a news release.

Simpson Heads CLEU

He replaces Dr. Malcolm Matheson who has been CLEU chief since its inception in 1974.

Simpson leaves his position as assistant director of the attorney-general ministry's criminal law division to take the post.

A lawyer, Simpson has been with the provincial government since 1964 and with the attorney-general's ministry since 1966.

Simpson was an active member of the Criminal Law Committee of the Canadian Bar Association and has been an executive member of the Victoria Bar Association on two occasions.

More Aid for Mobile Homes

The provincial government Monday introduced amendments to the Mobile Home Act which will enable more mobile home owners to receive government grants.

Housing Minister Hugh Curtis said in a news release about 14,000 additional owners on rented land will be eligible for the $1,000 home purchase assistance grant.

Larry Bell, deputy housing minister, said the amendments will also make owners eligible for the $280-a-year homeowner grant or the $480 senior citizens homeowner grant. People with a child who are buying their first home will be eligible for a $2,500 grant.

The amendments also establish a procedure for exempting homes from the act if they become permanently affixed or cease their residential use, Curtis said.

Basford Steps Around Heroin Treatment Law

He said B.C. has the power to legislate in areas of health and crime prevention, "and if the bill is carefully drawn up, it is possible to have a constitutional bill."

However, if the bill's main thrust is criminal law, then it would be unconstitutional.

The bill was presented to the legislature May 29 and authorizes the B.C. Drug and Alcohol Commission to set up a three-year heroin compulsory treatment program for addicts which includes detention for a maximum of three years, attendance at a treatment clinic or supervision.

Basford said his proposed amendments to the Criminal Code would allow a person convicted on a drug-related offence to take advantage of the B.C. program if he desires and if the Crown approves.

"It requires the consent of the Crown to assure that facilities are available, and the consent of the convicted to assure that he is willing to participate in the program and is not just seeking a transfer from maximum-security facilities to more comfortable facilities."

Basford said the federal proposals should not be taken to reflect on the B.C. scheme.

"The changes were brought forward in the hopes that if B.C. gets a treatment program going, those in the criminal justice system will be able to take advantage of it," he told a news conference.

The minister said the federal government is already spending "millions and millions of dollars on the police side."

"But all the police work in the world will not deal with what is essentially a deep social problem."

Numbers Split Grace, Iona

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said Monday she is shocked that the federal government has decided to run a computerized numbers game despite receiving near-unanimous opposition from the provinces.

Mrs. McCarthy told reporters all Canadians should stand up and rebel against the federal government's new $1 game, to be run by Loto Canada.

She said provincial lotteries will be unable to compete with the slick production put on by the federal government.

The federal lottery, she said, was established to help pay for the 1976 Montreal Olympics, not to take over every church and charitable bingo game to help finance the national deficit.

Iona Campagnolo, minister of fitness and amateur sport, announced Sunday in Vancouver that the new federal game will go into operation this fall.

The minister said the game will not take business away from provincial lotteries because Loto Canada will share profits with the provinces as it does with its $10 ticket lottery that offers prizes up to $1 million.

She said Mrs. McCarthy's misgivings that the game would hurt provincial lotteries such as the Provincial and Western Express are unfounded.

Mrs. McCarthy said the only province which agreed to the new federal plan was Nova Scotia — all the rest are firmly opposed.

House Tribute To Lyle

The legislature Monday paid tribute to career civil servant Bill Lyle who died Saturday.

Lyle started his 49-year career as a legislative page boy. When he retired last October he was deputy minister of medical and health programs in the ministry of health.

Health Minister Bob McClelland in sending his condolences to his family noted that Lyle was "recognized across Canada and elsewhere for his contribution as a pioneer in the development of universal hospital insurance."

Former health minister in the NDP administration, Dennis Cocke, expressed condolences on behalf of the NDP saying they were proud of him.

Transit Bill Clears Second House Reading

Under the new law Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria will have to enter into a cost-sharing agreement with the provincial government for their bus systems.

These systems, which incurred a $62 million deficit during the last fiscal year, are provided by B.C. Hydro and financed by Hydro's electrical customers.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said home owners in the smaller communities with their own transit systems will no longer be subject to double taxation — having to share costs for their systems and subsidize Hydro's Vancouver and Victoria systems through their electricity bills.

He said municipalities will be able to use property taxes to pay their share of transit costs, and will be given the authority to tax gasoline three cents a gallon and electricity bills.

Opposition critic Charles Barber (NDP—Victoria) said the government is proposing to create four new taxes to subsidize transit at the local level and remove the greater burden from the province at the provincial level.

"What concerns us is that this car-dealer cabinet should propose to add to the property tax burden, significantly and dangerously, a burden that is already too significant and too great in this province."

'TERMINOLOGY ADJUSTMENT'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Norman Olsen, chief operating officer of British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, and chairman of the management committee, has been appointed president of the Crown-owned utility.

Hydro chairman Robert Bonner also announced in a news release the appointment of six senior Hydro officials as vice-presidents. All the appointments were approved at a recent board of directors meeting.

Bonner said the new titles were an adjustment of terminology in keeping with modern corporate practice and did not represent changes in responsibilities.

Malaysia To Vote

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysia's five million eligible voters will elect a 154-seat national parliament and 10 state assemblies on July 8. The elections were called 13 months ahead of schedule.

Minister Surprised By Doctors' Outrage

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Monday he is surprised over the medical profession's outrage at his directive calling for patients to sign cards to prove their doctors have seen them.

McClelland announced Friday the plan will be implemented to prevent abuse of the prescription system. Doctors said Sunday they are planning to take action against the government to stop the plan.

The minister said the medical profession knew of the plan long ago, and while he is not bothered by its adverse reaction, he is surprised.

He also dismissed doctors' claims that the procedure will cause excessive paperwork.

McClelland said the change was introduced because of an avalanche of requests by patients to sign something to prove they received treatment.

But two separate sources in the health ministry put the number of letters received between 30 and 50 over a period of 18 months to two years.

The BCMA said the new regulations come into immediate effect but no directive has been received from the medical services plan.

Seeds, Berries Can Kill

OTTAWA (CP) — The seeds and berries of spring and garden plants can be poisonous says Noreen Bilodeau, nurse in charge of the poison control centre at the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario.

"Youngsters are attracted to the color of seeds and berries," she said, "and they don't realize they are poisonous."

Even apple seeds, if eaten in large quantities, can kill, said Ms. Bilodeau.

Among the ways to avoid plant poisonings are:

Make them aware of the potential dangers of poisonous plants.

Know the plant before eating its fruits or berries.

Don't make home-made medicines from native or cultivated plants.

The federal department of consumer and corporate affairs has prepared a list of common plants that have toxic parts.

Two to four castor beans can cause death. New shoots of the potato plant and rhubarb leaves are poisonous.

Bio-dex

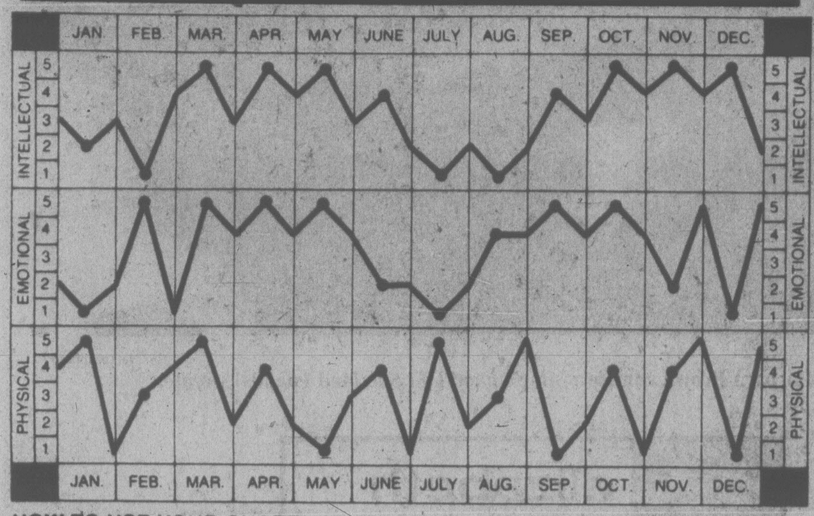
By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

© BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:
Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- You may be envious. Consider your positive talents before you turn green.

11-15 Positive Cycle- It's time to stretch your abilities. Mountain climb, ski, learn how to swim.

On a neutral cycle you may pay less attention to priorities. The most immediate problem seems the most pressing and it may engross you to the exclusion of other, more critical, issues. Perhaps the immediate problem can be dispatched neatly and quickly, leaving you free to attend to more important matters. Your neutral Bio-dex reading is a guidepost toward the need to straighten out priorities.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reference to the letter from the young girl who said that her foster father had been making advances toward her. You advised her to tell her foster mother at once!

Abby, I know you meant well, but I have learned after many years of experience as a child protection worker in a public welfare agency that telling the mother is useless.

In most cases, the mother would think the child is lying. And in other cases, if the girl is believed, the mother will refuse to bring charges against her husband for fear of the family's reputation and what the law might do to her husband. Then, too, if, if he's sent to prison, her breadwinner is gone! So she resolves all this by pronouncing the girl a liar and ingrate.

I would recommend that the girl tell her social worker or school counsellor. They are trained to help the girl and her foster family.

SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR SOCIAL WORKER: Whether she is believed or not, I still think it is imperative that the child tell her foster mother first. Then, if the situation doesn't improve, I always advise the child to seek help from a trusted teacher, adult relative, school counselor, clergyman or neighbor. Otherwise, when the father is confronted, the mother will know that the child has gone to "outsiders" — instead of coming to her — which could create even more difficulties in the home.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished crying my eyes out over something that is not my fault. A very nice boy from school started dating me and I was on cloud nine. I was never popular, and he was like an answer to my prayers.

Well, he just called me up and told me he couldn't date me anymore because his parents have forbidden him to. The reason was they heard that my older sister had a baby out of wedlock. (She did; but, Abby, I have never done one thing out of the way, so why should I have to suffer for something my sister did?) I have even had girlfriends tell me they couldn't go around with me anymore because of my sister's reputation.

I am not like my sister, and I don't see why people should hold this against me. How can I prove that I am a "nice" girl when I have this against me?

NICE GIRL

DEAR NICE: Don't try to "prove" anything. People who aren't willing to judge you on your own record aren't worth having as friends.

Back after 43 Years

Now, in a brief six week visit he has been searching out old friends — here, up-island and on the mainland — and, in his own words, having the time of his life doing it.

Born on the Isle of Unst, one of the smallest and most northerly of the Shetlands group, Hunter first came to Victoria in 1926, looking for work in the depression years that followed the First World War.

He lived out at what he calls Ocean Beach — we say the Esquimalt Lagoon — and for a short time picked apples on the George Turner farm in that district.

Then, through Turner's influence and an introduction to H.J. Pendray, who lived on the lagoon, he went to work at Bapco Paint Co. Ltd.

Hunter married here. A Shetland Island girl, of course.

"I'd known her a bit at home and we renewed acquaintence when she came out with some other Shetland girls hoping to find work."

Their first son George was born here. And it looked as if the young family would stay in this part of the world.

But Jim Hunter was an only son.

Over on Unst his father was getting old and tired. He was one of the few who owned his farm — most of the others rented their land — and his letters were beginning to hint at giving everything up, home, barns, animals and acreage.

"I was born in that house," Hunter says, "and I didn't want to see it out of the family."

So he decided to leave Bapco, where he had been employed for nine years, go back to Unst and take up farming. That was in 1935.

The Hunters lived on in the family home after his parents were gone. Two more sons, Brian and William, were born there. Mrs. Hunter died there a little over two years ago.

Now Hunter is there alone and he too says he hopes to die there.

Around 400 of those little ponies are on Unst, Hunter says, and about 200 of the young are sold each year.

Although in his 80th year, back on the farm he is first up in the morning and last to bed.

Mainly he insists, "because I'm right there . . , the others live farther away."

He's in the byres (barns) by six in the morning. Out here he's been sleeping in, he boasts, until 8 a.m.

Milking is a mechanized operation "but once it comes up the pipe" it is his job to get it into the pint cartons.

Here he explains that over on Unst and in most of Scotland, for that matter, nothing much bigger than pint cartons or bottles are used now.

There are no trees on Unst, he says. "Not a one unless its the few bits of things planted in farmhouse gardens."

The soil is rich and the well-kept fields are heavy with grains in season, and with grass.

"I've been fascinated by the displays I've seen in your stores out here."

Sheep not only provide meat but also the soft, fine wool, in natural colors of brown, tan, black, white, and black and white, used in the making of the famed hand-knit Shetland sweaters that until recently were the islands main export.

Discovery of oil in the North Sea has given a quick boost, in other ways, to the Unst economy and that of the Shetlands.

There is work for all, new people are arriving daily, and money is being made out on the rigs.

This new affluence coincides with a drop in hand-knitting.

Older people, all experts in fine spinning and knitting are gradually dropping out and the younger ones are not taking it up.

The wool is still in demand, the sweaters are still being exported but these days it is easier and quicker to turn them out by machine than by hand, Hunter says, with a note of sadness in his voice.

"So the art of fine spinning and hand knitting is gradually dying out."

People of the Shetlands, he reminds you, are descended from the Norsemen and the Vikings.

They do not speak Gaelic, nor do they have a Celtic accent. Their customs and their festivals are all related to Norse legends.

Here he tells you of a winter festival, Up-Helly-Aa, based on the ancient belief that when a Viking died he went off to Valhalla in his own ship, set afire and floated out to sea.

Today, there is a torchlight procession with everyone dressed in Viking or Norse costumes.

When it is ended, the lighted torches are tossed into a galley, built for the event, and it is set afire in a symbolic gesture to the old-time legend.

First torch is tossed by the Guizer Yarl, chief of the procession. And this year it was Hunter's eldest son George, born in Victoria and now an engineer with the Shetland Islands water and sewage boards.

Brian and William, working with an oil company, were also prominent in the ceremony.

During the six weeks he has been here Jim Hunter has been the guest of Gilbert and Barbara Brown at Rosebank Farm on Cedar Hill Road.

Brown's father, also a Shetland islander, born on Fetlar, came out here as a young man and Hunter was often in that family home when he first came to Victoria, in 1926.

On Friday he is flying back to Unst. And alrady he is looking forward to "a gathering" in the old farmhouse.

His three sisters will be there, his sons and their wives, seven grandchildren and all other Hunter connections and old friends.

And he'll be telling them of a fishing trip he went on with Alan Pendray "who was a slip of a lad when I was working at Bapco" and two old-time employees, Andy Stewart an Jimmy Ferrie.

Also of the many friendships he has renewed, the Shetland Islanders he has looked up, and "best of all" as he puts it, the warm welcome and the hospitality he has received in his six week visit, and that, he says, he will never forget.

For example, the booklet points out that more than 12 million Canadians own policies and that now the average amount of life insurance owned in every Canadian household is more than $32,000. The money Canadians invest in life insurance — about two billion dollars a year — helps to finance Canada's development and to create jobs for Canadians.

Because there are so many different life insurance annuity policies, the guide helps you to a better understanding of the wide range of choices. It explains a host of insurance terms such as variable policies, participating policies, endowment policies and others.

The booklet also mentions that, in the past 30 years, group insurance has become an important factor in the Canadian life insurance industry. It now accounts for about half of the total amount of life insurance owned by Canadians. From the viewpoint of an employee, a group plan provides low-cost life insurance protection. From the viewpoint of the general public, a group plan enables those who may not qualify for an individual policy to obtain life insurance protection.

In addition, the booklet deals with annuities, explains how premiums are set and how insurance companies invest their funds.

Send your request for this booklet to: Educational Division, Canadian Life Insurance Association, 55 University Avenue, Suite 1400, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2K7.

CASH THE KEY FOR KIDS

HAMILTON (CP) — Children should receive an allowance as soon as they are old enough to understand money, says Mary Blum, child psychologist for the Hamilton-Wentworth Regional Health Unit.

Mrs. Blum said in an interview that children should be free to spend an allowance as they wish.

She said he would make the starting age as young as kindergarten. It would be a small amount—perhaps only five cents a week.

Increases should come with increases in the child's responsibility, perhaps a raise at the start of each new grade in school. School should be considered as the child's work and the work became harder each year.

Mrs. Blum said increased allowances should not be tied in with increases in the family income.

"I think the income increase should be related to the child's needs and responsibility. It should be negotiated each year."

She said that if a child wants something expensive and saves up for it, he learns how to save money. Then he values money more.

She opposed cutting off the allowance as a punishment. This was depriving the child of sustenance, almost like a withdrawal of love.

An exception would be paying for damage such as a broken window, with the amount depending on the child's age.

A Wire Boot Scraper

Instead of tracking soil indoors from your newly planted garden, why not place a boot scraper or two near your door?

Build a T-shaped support by nailing two boards together at right angles, and cut four or five evenly spaced notches into the upper edge of the vertical piece. Now lay out four or five sturdy pieces of wire and use heavy-duty staples to attach them to one end of the base. Next, thread the strands through the slots you've cut in the edge of the board, and fasten the wires to the other end of the horizontal plank while you pull 'em taut.

It's then quite easy to remove mud and dried dirt from shoes: just draw your earth-caked soles across this dandy contraption and watch the mess fall off!

Chemical Traces In Tots' Bodies

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Traces of the cancer-causing flame retardant Tris were found in urine of children who wore garments treated with the chemical, a researcher says.

"Urinary concentrations of the compound, in the 10-parts-per-billion range, are low but indicate that more is present elsewhere in the body," said Dr. Ralph C. Dougherty of Florida State University.

Dougherty spoke by telephone to a regional meeting of the American Chemical Society, saying he and other researchers utilitized a new detection technique called Negative Chemical Ionization Mass Spectrometry — NCI.

Eleven children were tested, he said.

"The Tris product — dibromopropanol — appeared in all of eleven children who wore treated and washed pajamas for five to seven days," he said.

Levels of the poison in children's urine declined with time, Dougherty said, although the substance was present 12 days after exposure to the sleepwear had ended.

The new technique, he said, has also been used to detect chlorine compounds in the breast fluid of nonlactating women, herbicides in human tissue and seminal fluids, and environmental poisons in food.

Dougherty also said the primary contaminant in the human seminal fluid is a widely used herbicide and wood preservative and a confirmed mutagen known as PCP — pentachlorophenol.

He said there has been a "dramatic and widely unappeciated decline in male fertility over the past two decades," but whether PCB levels have contributed to this decline is not known.

"PCP and other chlorinated organics also have appeared in grain and sugar products, powdered milk and even candy bars," he said. His studies have indicated the presence of these compounds at one to 100 parts per billion.

"Another ongoing NCI mass spectrometric study reveals the presence of chlorinated organics in the breast fluid of women who have not lactated," he said. "The identities of the compounds are still unknown."

Dougherty says the new technique will detect substances that occur once in every one-billion molecules tested. Toxins that occur at a smaller rate may go unnoticed.

VICTIM PROMOTED

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP) — An 11-year-old boy kidnapped by three armed men April 23 has been promoted in absentia to the next grade in school. The principal said Mauro Carassale's six-week absence from classes was "independent of his will, and his school record during the course was so excellent that he needed no examination."

Mauro's father, a furniture manufacturer, is reported to have paid $130,000 ransom, but the child has not been released.

Nader's Outrage Keeps Bubbling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than a decade after he wrote Unsafe at Any Speed, Ralph Nader is still bubbling with outrage at the automobile industry.

"I never have to engage in nostalgia," the consumer advocate said. "They always make it current for me. They're the kind of people who, if you find them guilty of a thousand crimes, they'd move to abolish the prisons ....

"Something happens to those guys when they get behind those corporate shells," Nader said in an interview. "I keep asking, 'Would they do this to their neighbors?' "

The rhetoric is vintage Nader and it sounds much like what he was saying 10 years ago.

But these comments were uttered only last week, after Ford Motor Co. announced it was recalling more than 1.5 million Ford Pintos and Mercury Bobcats nearly a year after Nader had claimed the cars were firetraps because of the location of their fuel tanks.

As was the case with his history-making book on the Chevrolet Corvair, the affected company defended its car and counter-attacked the criticism.

The Pinto problem broke in August, 1977 when Mother Jones magazine ran an aricle claiming more than 500 persons had been burned to death in pre-1977 model Pintos.

The information for the article was largely fed to the author by Nader and, once the story was in print, Nader began demanding a recall.

The article's author admitted his 500-death estimate was not based on an actual count but on a calculation derived from the number of fire deaths that occur in auto accidents each year and the percentage of Pintos on the road.

Ford countered that the Pinto was "involved in fewer fire-associated collisions than might be expected, considering the total number of Pintos in operation."

It also said "every model year of the Pinto has been tested and met or surpassed the federal fuel system integrity standard applicable to it."

In the meantime, juries have awarded large sums of money in two suits involving Pinto crash burn injuries, and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration last month ruled that the fuel tanks were hazardous.

Nader is still not satisfied.

He said the correction Ford is proposing — and which NHTSA has not yet approved — is too weak.

"They are doing only 15 to 20 per cent of what they should do," he said. "They're trying to get the government into a situation where it either has to take this or a fight.

"They should replace the fuel tank with what they call a double layer fuel tank with polyurethane between," Nader said, instead of the shield Ford has offered to install without charge.

"The shield costs them about a buck," he added, "and they've been offering this same fix (previously) to people who want to buy it for $25. I've got the part number. How's that for a profit?"

TATTOO LATEST SKIN GAME

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The newest fad in the beauty business is a temporary tattoo.

The tattoos are actually transfers which are applied with water and removed with soap and water or baby oil, says Linda Schaefer who has been selling them for several months at her beauty salon.

During the winter she sold about five a week and now that summer is on the way, she said she expects the fad to really take off.

The transfers can be worn on any part of the body—shoulders, back, hands, thighs.

One woman bought them to wear on her posterior so they would show when she's wearing short shorts while cycling.

Ms. Schaefer said her customers are buying them beceuse they are colorful and eye-catching, a conversation piece and a replacement for conventional jewelry.

They come in a variety of patterns—roses, daisies, stars, cherries, hearts, butterflies and bumble bees.

Scientist Honored

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Sir William Osler has long been recognized as one of the world's great doctors and philosophers. He illuminated the horizons of modern medicine. His credo was: "We are here not to get all we can out of life for ourselves, but to try to make the lives of others happier .... Scientific creativity is the philosopher's stone which transmutes all the base metal of humanity into gold."

Such an admirable concept can well be applied to Dr. George Papanicolaou who has recently been honored by the issuance of a United States memorial stamp that bears his likeness.

Some readers will hardly recognize the name until we identify it as the doctor who created the "Pap" test, an advance in modern medicine now familiar to women everywhere.

Thousands of women can attribute their health and longevity to this remarkable test which aids in the early diagnosis of cancer of the cervix. And, since early detection means early treatment, and early treatment means a greater chance for complete recovery, the test stands out as one of the great contributions in gynecological medicine The use of the test has now been effectively extended to the early diagnosis of cancer of the lungs, breasts, bladder and esophagus. People of all ages all over the world are the beneficiaries of Dr. Papanicolaou's scientific originality.

Dr. William G. Cahan, of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Centre, a friend and colleague of the late Dr. Papanicolaou, was one of the active forces in the planning of an enchanting testimonial to this great man, one that will perpetuate both his memory and his accomplishments.

This was first conceived when Dr. Cahan visited the island of Kos, in the Aegean Sea, in 1966. He stood beneath the boughs of the very tree where Hippocrates created and taught the oath that symbolizes the ideals of medical practice.

Dr. Cahan brought a tiny seedling from that tree to the United States. He felt that the transposition of a part of this famous tree would be a fitting and everlasting tribute to another worthy physician of Greek ancestry, Dr. Papanicolaou. The seedling was carefully nurtured; it survived and flourished. Now an 18-foot tree graces the compound of the New York Hospital Cornell Medical Centre.

Young doctors, taking the oath of Hippocrates as they graduate from the medical school, are each given a leaf from this tree as a symbol of the humility and greatness of Dr. Papanicalaou who, along with Hippocrates, felt that "to make the lives of others happier" is the ultimate in one's own life.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

A "safety play" is the play of a suit in such a manner as either (1) to protect against an abnormal or bad break, or (2) to avoid losing too many tricks in that suit. In today's deal, our South declarer failed to employ a safety play which would have guaranteed his contract, with the consequence being the loss of his contract.

Both sides vulnerable.
South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

Afer winning the opening heart lead, South, possibly in a hurry to get to the next deal, started playing the diamond suit. He was quite startled when he noted that West discarded a spade on the second diamond lead. When play had ended, South still had the eight winners with which he had started.

Without any doubt, South got a bad break in the diamond suit, with East having been dealt five of them headed by the jack (a 5-1 division occurs about 15 per cent of the time). But actually South's defeat was strictly of his own making. Had he but counted his tricks, he would have known that he needed just four diamond tricks (not five) to fulfill his contract.

After winning the opening heart lead, the proper play is to cash the ace of diamonds (there are days when a singleton jack might be floating around). When both opponents follow suit with low diamonds, South next leads the three of diamonds towards dummy's nine. Whichever of the defenders (East, in this case) possesses the jack is welcome to win a trick with that card; and simultaneously, South's ten of diamonds becomes his game-going trick.

Incidentally, a brief word on the bidding is in order. Many types of hands arise for which there are no "book" bids. South's hand was one of these. He didn't have the values to make a game-forcing bid of two diamonds; nor could he open with two no-trump. So he bid one diamond, hoping that his partner could respond. When North did respond, South's three-club rebid was of course forcing to game.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, June 14
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Break from the past indicated. Legalities figure prominently. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Permit those close to you to have their say. Be ready, willing to throw off shackles. But don't tip your hand. Play cards close to chest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Go slow, obtain hint from Aries message. Emphasis on product, work procedures, schedules. Accent service, dependents, pets — follow through on hunch. You receive guidance from "inner voice." You learn what to do — and when to do it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Fun, creativity, change, travel, exciting contacts are featured. Expand horizons, raise expectations. Children style, speculation, adventure command attention. You get what you want after significant transformation of attitude.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check measurements. Be factual. Build on solid structure. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio figure prominently. Contracts, commitments, investments, dividends are part of scenario. Partner or mate talks money and you benefit by being an attentive listener.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on desire, friendship, significant changes, gain through reading, writing. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment. Short trip, ideas, relatives crowd into scenario. Cycle is high and you can be selective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Count blessings — and your change. Emphasis on gifts, luxury items, purchases and sales. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently — so does the number 6. Money question can be settled "out of court."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle high — take initiative, be first, a pioneer, willing to take a chance on ideas, abilities. Wear bright blue; take time to understand your own feelings and those of loved ones. Romantic interlude is very much a part of scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message. Clandestine meeting could be on your schedule. Be discreet. Look behind the scenes. Accept responsibility, but insist on compensation. Giving up time, or anything of value, requires something in return — or what you give will not be appreciated. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on display of talents; your appeal is emphasized and your ways now are winning ways. Know it, be confident, gracious. You sense what to do and when to do it; you get finger on pulse of public.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New approach is necessary in dealing with employer, executives, those who issue directives. Be independent, direct, creative in outlining needs, goals. You get results — and backing from surprise source.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Education, publication, travel, long-range view — these are emphasized. Cancer, Capricorn and another Aquarian figure prominently. Open mind to new concepts. Communicate in sense that you share without weakening your own position.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Humor, versatility, diversification — these are highlighted. Emphasis on solving a mystery, investigating, digging deep enough to strike pay dirt. Check fine print in lease, stock arrangement or purchase.

IF JUNE 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are active, attractive, restless, bright. You are an excellent reporter, fascinated by language, travel, photography. You are a natural teacher, psychologist and are drawn to social work. Sagittarius, Leo, Virgo pesons play important roles in your life. August could be your most significant month of 1978, a year in which yoy gain sense of direction, more recognition and in which you are rid of a longstanding burden.

DREDGING 'FULL OF BID-RIGGING'

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Schneider, former vice-president and general manager of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd., testified Monday that he and some colleagues in other dredging companies did not consider rigging tender bids criminal or illegal because it had been standard procedure for so long.

Schneider testified in Ontario Supreme Court that rigging bids to ensure a profit whether a company won a contract or not was just doing business.

"Things had been done that way for so many years before . . . he never thought of it in terms of it being illegal or criminal," he told Maurice Piche, lawyer for The J. P. Porter Co. Ltd. and Richelieu Dredging Corp. Ltd.

Eleven businessmen and nine companies, including Canadian Dredge, J. P. Porter and Richelieu, are charged with conspiring to defraud public agencies of more than $4.27 million between 1969 and 1975 by rigging dredging bids.

Schneider, who was beginning his second week of cross-examination, is the second of three unindicted alleged co-conspirators to testify for the Crown.

He has told the jury he received an understanding from police and the Crown that no charges would be laid against him if he gave police a statement and told the truth.

Schneider testified that bid-rigging was so common in the dredging industry he never felt he had to attempt to disguise what he was doing.

"We certainly didn't advertise it," he said. "But most arrangements were made verbally."

AirCan, CP Air Land at Bottom of Efficiency Class

WINNIPEG (CP) — A recently-completed study of airline performances says Air Canada and CP Air rate with the United States' two worst airlines controlled by Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) regulations.

Results of the study, conducted by William A. Jordan of the faculty of administrative studies at York University in Toronto, were presented by Jordan to the Canadian Transportation Research Forum Monday.

In saying the two main Canadian airlines are among "the less effective" of the federally-regulated airlines in North America, Jordan said that in terms of output per employee they rank with Delta and Eastern which are ranked 10th and 11th.

"Thus it is not surprising to find their fare levels seldom being lower than those of the CAB-regulated airlines."

The paper says employee productivity appears to be lower among the federally-regulated airlines in both Canada and the United States.

In another paper, the delegates were told airline transportation efficiency in Canada involves "complex public interest considerations within which commercial market efficiency is important but not sufficent."

Ralph Harris, chairman of the Centre for Transport Studies, said that in pursuit of transportation efficiency the government has intervened boldly in air transport development and has established monopoly or quasi-monopoly positions for its carriers.

More Armor for Army

OTTAWA (CP) — The armed forces may receive up to 100 more Pirhana armored cars than expected when the vehicles were ordered a year ago, say defence department officials.

They say the department is convinced the vehicle, training, logistics and spare parts will cost less than originally estimated. So the government could buy more than the original 350 Pirhanas for the $171 million price in 1976-77 dollars.

The department is counting on buying more than 400 and perhaps as many as 450, a department official said Monday.

However, a spokesman for Defence Minister Barney Danson confirmed reports the department is not planning to pick up an option to buy an additional 350 Pirhanas in a new order. The option expires this month.

"The department has not come up with any military requirement for the extra vehicles," he said.

The defence department has said 197 of the 350-vehicle order will be delivered to the regular forces and 114 to militia units.

Alberta's Arrogance Hailed by The Times

LONDON (CP) — The Times, in a special five-page report on Alberta and the Commonwealth Games, says the province has "a positive arrogance that everything is possible" there.

It describes Calgary as "having a mood of raw vitality" and quotes an investment broker from Toronto as saying the city "looks as if it has just been uncrated."

As for Edmonton, the Games this August "will probably turn out to the biggest event in the history of the city since the Yukon gold rush in the late 1890s."

Writer Don Peacock, in what he admits is "an informal survey, limited in scope," says "the level of male chauvinism still appears higher in Alberta than in Canada's most populous province of Ontario and, by some accounts, than in Britain."

Ivor Dent, former mayor of Edmonton and one of the leaders in winning the Games for that city, is profiled as "the forgotten man," who is "not in the least bitter about his removal from the scene."

Writer Anthony Jones says "not all Albertans are large — they just give the appearance of being so; larger than life, really, and they enjoy the life-style they have created for themselves in one of Canada's richest and fastest-growing provinces."

"Alberta is going to have a memorable Games," he says.

Trudeau Rejects Tory Plea To Intervene in Treu Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Monday rejected a request from Conservative Gerald Baldwin to intervene in case of Alexander Peter Treu and to stay proceedings until there has been a thorough investigation by the Commons.

Baldwin (Peace River) referred in the Commons to published reports during the weekend that Treu, a 56-year-old NATO air defence system designer, continued to receive classified contracts during his secret trial in Montreal in April. He was convicted and sentenced to two years for violating the Official Secrets Act and now is free on bail pending appeal.

Baldwin said the reports indicate that Treu might have been charged and sentenced "to prevent the probable disclosure of bungling, ineptness and stupidity on the part of the government and government officials."

Baldwin asked Trudeau to allow the Commons to investigate the situation because it is the highest court in the land.

Trudeau said that both sides agreed to the secret trial. He added that it is not customary for Parliament to intervene in cases under appeal.

Baldwin said the prime minister is prepared to "stay silent and let this injustice continue."

The Conservative MP has been crusading for complete disclosure of all matters surrounding the case that do not relate to national security.

Last week the government released Treu's bail documents and sentencing report after persistent questioning from the Opposition.

Workers Fear Lie Test Threat

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Striking workers at the Moose Jaw Sash and Door Ltd. say they have been threatened with cancellation of their personal fire insurance policies unless they agree to poligraph tests in connection with the investigation of a fire at the company's warehouse.

Letters of protest have been sent to city council and Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow regarding the threat.

Representatives of the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor, the International Woodworkers of America and the Moose Jaw Labor Council met in Moose Jaw June 7 to discuss city police methods being employed in the investigation of suspected arson at the warehouse.

One of the striker's revealed in a statement that city police Sgt. Det. Richard Baum had asked him if he would take a lie detector test. "When I refused, he stated I should expect someone knocking at my door and inquiring about my personal fire insurance on my house."

Airports Checked For Fire Safety

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department is conducting a review of all airports to determine whether there is adequate fire fighting equipment on hand, the Commons was told Monday.

Transport Minister Otto Lang said he has asked his officials for a complete report on the fire-fighting capability of all airports as well as the standards which are expected to be met.

Lang was replying to Conservative MP Bob Brisco (Kootenay West) who complained that the equipment at Castlegar airport in his British Columbia constituency consisted of "one jeep, two fire extinguishers, three pairs of rubber boots and an axe."

Lang said delivery delays in the last year have held up plans to re-equip some airports and to transfer equipment from major airports to smaller ones.

CANADA NOT A 'RURITANIA'

OTTAWA (CP) — Sport Minister Iona Campagnola Monday castigated provinces for giving her an "ultimatum" last week to get out of the lottery business.

She questioned their commitment to co-operation, said they were not separate states and that they were dealing with a Canada devoted to the federal system and not a Ruritania.

Her loud outburst came in the Commons after Conservatives questioned her on plans to change Loto Canada.

He said the federal government gave the provinces an ultimatum.

SENT PACKING

MONTREAL (CP) — Jocelyne Deraiche, the Canadian girlfriend of the notorious French criminal Jacques Mesrine, arrived here Monday afternoon on an Air France flight from Paris.

The 26-year-old woman told reporters during a brief meeting that she had been informed of her deportation only that morning.

Saudi Arms Deals Exaggerated: Paris

PARIS (Reuter) — French officials and arms dealers said Monday a Cairo published report that Saudi Arabia has concluded a $24 billion arms deal with France is highly exaggerated, but they admitted that deals clinched are sizeable.

"France has its share in the bonanza," a leading arms dealer said. "But $24 million is a lot of money for a lot of hardware."

The Egyptian weekly magazine October said Sunday that Saudi Arabia placed orders for tanks, helicopters and a radar system covering the whole Red Sea area.

October's editor Anis Mansour, in an unsourced report, said the deal was concluded during a visit to France by King Khalid of Saudi Arabia two weeks ago.

French officials denied Monday that there was any talk of arms between Khalid and President Giscard d'Estaing during the monarch's visit to Paris.

Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal, who accompanied Khalid on his trip to Paris, said at the time that there was no discussion of purchases of France's latest Mirage 2000 fighter-bomber plane or other arms.

The Saudi government, which has an arms purchasing mission attached to their embassy in Paris, alreads has purchased more than 300 French AMX tanks, a score of Mirage F-1 fighter aircraft and about 30 helicopters, as well as radar equipment. Saudi Arabia also has placed a big order for AMX tanks mounting a specially-designed Shahine desert missile to equip four mechanized battalions.

Defending the world's biggest source of oil, Saudi Arabia has embarked on an expensive crash program to modernize its armed forces. It has a 35,000-man army, a 12,000-man air force and a 3,500-man navy.

Saudi Arabia, which relies heavily in the military sphere on its special relationship with the United States, is diversifying its arms purchase from other sources, mainly from France and Britain.

SADAT PUTS JOB ON LINE

BEIRUT (AFP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will resign at the end of June if Israel has not changed its stand on peace negotiations, the conservative Lebanese daily Al Ahrar reported today, citing diplomatic sources.

The United States had already once dissuaded Sadat from resignation, the newspaper said, but he was only willing to move the date to the end of this month.

The newspaper said that it believed the Egyptian people as a whole would ask him to remain in office and continue his current policies.

FOX HUNTING BAN EYED

LONDON (Reuter) — Riding to the hounds, a favorite sport of British royalty and aristocracy, may soon be illegal in Britain if a government proposal is accepted.

A committee of the governing Labor Party Monday proposed that fox and deer hunting be banned and said proposals for legislation should be included in the party platform for the next election.

Ottawa White Slaver Jailed

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A Canadian lawyer from Ottawa was sentenced to three months in prison Monday for transporting an 18-year-old girl into the United States for immoral purposes.

U.S. District Judge Harold Munson sentenced Sidney Cwinn of Ottawa, to three months in prison and 21 months probation for Cwinn's guilty plea in the case.

Following his release from Prison, Cwinn is not to enter the United States without special permission of probation officials, under terms of Munson's sentence.

Cwinn pleaded guilty to the charge, accusing him of bringing women from Ottawa into the United States 27 times for immoral purposes.

Cwinn, 53, admitted he "committed immoral acts" against a girl he brought to Syracuse on June 1, 1973, under the pretext of participating in a horse show.

Nazis Didn't Take No

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) — Former Treblinka death camp guard Feodor Fedorenko took the stand in his own defence Monday and testified that he had to follow the orders of his Nazi bosses or be executed himself.

"They didn't ask. They told you to go. And if you didn't, they shot you down like a dog," Fedorenko said as he opened what was expected to be lengthy defence testimony.

Asked why he co-operated, Fedorenko said: "I was saving my life or else they would have executed me. If you didn't listen, they'd execute you right away."

Defence attorney Gregg Pomeroy asked him if he knew the nature of the Treblinka camp before going there.

"I didn't know," replied Fedorenko. "When I arrived I knew."

Fedorenko, 71, a Miami Beach resident, is accused of torturing and killing Jews during the Second World War and then lying on his naturalization papers to gain entry to the United States in 1949 and win citizenship in 1970.

If the judge rules against Fedorenko in the civil action brought by the federal government, he could lose his citizenship and be deported to Europe where he could face trial on war crimes charges.

Coups By U.S. Failed

TOKYO (AP) — American and Vietnamese agents helped foment three unsuccessful coups against the Cambodian government since the Khmer Rouge Communists seized power in April, 1975, Deputy Premier Ieng Sary said today.

"There was an attempt to topple our government in September, 1975, as well as one in 1976 and 1977," Sary told reporters in Tokyo. "We have managed to put down all such attempts at subversion."

The Cambodian leader, here on an unofficial visit, said the CIA and Vietnamese secret service had encouraged the attempts at overthrow.

Cambodia and Vietnam, its Communist neighbor, are locked in a longstanding border conflict, and Sary said Cambodia is willing to negotiate the disagreement "with the precondition that Vietnam must promise to respect our territorial integrity.

Refugees reaching Thailand have said thousands of persons died when the Cambodian regime, in an effort to consolidate its power, drove most of the population of Phnom Penh into the countryside.

Don't Forget those Bulbs

As summer approaches, the memories of the spring flowering bulbs are dimmed by the beauty of flowering trees, shrubs, and the early perennials, but the bulbs should not be forgotten.

To assure a return of those pleasures next spring we have fertilized and watered the plantings so that the foliage could manufacture food and put back the energy expended in producing the flowers we enjoyed.

This year the foliage has completed its work a few weeks earlier than normal, now becoming limp and losing its bright green color. It is the signal for the gardener to take action if the plantings are in need of renewal or changes are contemplated.

Our main interest is probably in the Narcissus, a genus which includes the large trumpet daffodils, the large and small cupped narcissi, the doubles, the Jonquil hybrids, and the Poetaz and Poeticus divisions; secondly in the tulips, hyacinths, and the bulbous irises.

We are advised to dig the tulips every year and replant them in October for the best results.

When digging tulips we may find an underground stem extending from the original bulb to a small bulb lower in the soil. This is an indication the bulbs were not planted deep enough and are endeavoring to adjust their position.

Be sure to dig deep enough to lift these new bulbs intact, make a note of the lenght of underground stems, and replant at approximately the same depth.

Hyacinths and bulbous irises may need to be lifted if flowering has been poor because the humus content of the soil has been depleted.

The narcissi can remain for three to five years in a soil containing plenty of humus (compost). When the bulbs produce a quantity of foliage and few flowers it indicates the bulbs have multipled and the soil needs replenishing.

Before the foliage dries and is released from the bulbs so that their exact location is difficult to determine, lifting should be started.

Needed items before the digging starts are several shallow boxes (flats) and name tags for each variety or color, also a small digging fork because it does less damage if it strikes a bulb than the blade of a spade.

The lifted bulbs with foliage attached are placed in a single layer in the flats with the appropriate label for identification. The flats then go to a cool dry place, out of sun and rain, but where there is good air circulation.

By early July the foliage will have withered and come away from the bulbs, and the bulbs are then cleaned. Never pull off the foliage because of damaging the bulbs.

Cleaning entails removal of soil remaining on the bulbs by gently rubbing with thumbs and fingers, extreme care being taken not to damage or revmove the outer skins, or jackets. Tulips are cleaned before the jackets become dry enough to split.

After cleaning, each variety or color is placed in a separate mesh bag or nylon stocking, and the identification tag attached to the outside. The bags are hung in a cool dry place, out of sunlight, where there is unrestricted air circulation, until planting time in the late summer and early fall.

Narcissi are planted in early September (Labor Day); tulips in October; hyacinths in late September; bulbous irises as late as early November unless the soil in the garden is normally too wet for working at that time.

While the bulbs are out of the soil the new planting area is tilled and compost added, regularly watered in dry weather, and allowed to settle, so that the bulbs can be planted at the correct depths.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

SAVIOR KUDZU NOW A DEVIL

SAVANNAH, Ga. (Reuter) — Wherever you go in the Deep South, there's a constant reminder of Japan.

The lush, green vine with its broad three-pointed leaves grows so rapaciously that it's called King-Kong Kudzu. Once called the saviour of the South, it's now a scourge.

Kudzu was introduced to the United States innocently in 1876, when Japan used it to decorate its exhibition at the U.S. Centennial celebration in Philadelphia.

Kudzu was a godsend to farmers plagued by soil erosion and became a feature on the porches of many southern homes, where its thick green mat of vegetation provided welcome shade from the heat of summer.

During Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal program of the 1930s, which was aimed at improving the lot of laborers, farmers and the unemployed, the government gave away millions of kudzu plants to southern farmers, believing it would provide them with an excellent forage crop that would also rejuvenate the soil in which it grew.

But kudzu has its drawbacks: Where it grows, nothing else does. It climbs fences and trees, races across open lots, encamps itself in fields planted with other crops.

By the 1950s, the drawbacks of kudzu outweighed its advantages and planting ended — but by then it was too late; kudzu was out of control.

U.K. Communists Try a Comic Turn

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

LONDON — Unsuccessful in any recent democratic elections, the Communist Party of Britain has launched a comic strip revolution.

A four-page pullout in the Communist daily newspaper, The Morning Star, is billed as "revolution — British style" but subtitled, more modestly, "the British road to socialism." (the Labor government currently in power doesn't count).

The cartoon supplement paraphrases "a long term strategy for a socialist revolution" and is, essentially, a boil-down of a 60-page manifesto produced by the party at its last congress, itself the fifth edition of a revolutionary plan first outlined in 1951.

In fact it has already split the British Communist Party, with a small group of hardliners complaining that the strategy is "too soft."

"Lenin's ideas don't frighten us," declared Sidney French, one of the members of a group calling itself the "New" Communist Party, which also opposes the Euro-communism line of the main party.

There are some 28,000 members of the Communist party in Britain, but in the last general election, Communist candidates, with 29 lost deposits, got only two-tenths of a per cent of the vote. The Morning Star isn't doing so well, either. It runs a continuous appeal for funds. The total collected is printed weekly in The Star and recently stood at $700 but since when is not mentioned.

The cartoon revolution, drawn by G. Roche, features strong language, such as "twit" which is what a reader of The Star thinks about a reader of the racy Sun, which is rather more to the right.

"The institution of the state" including the police, the law, the army and parliament, is depicted unflatteringly, and a member of parliament's contribution as "yap." Also, "Elizabeth Windsor for one would have to find a useful job."

"Where will the cash to pay for it come from?" asks the party. The answer lies in public ownership of the means of production, chiefly through nationalization of all the profitable companies. What went wrong with the "right wing" Labor party now in power, obviously, is that it only nationalized the unprofitable industries.

There is, of course, more to it all than that.

"Socialism is the food of live," the British Communists declare.

Losers First at Barbeque

FREDERICKSBURG, Tex. (AP) — From the tip of his elongated snout to the end of his rat-like tail, Barbecue Wennichverlieren looked every inch the magnificent thoroughbred, born to run.

The track was fast. All bets were down. Excitement rippled through the crowd jamming the grandstand at the Gillespie County Fairgrounds.

It takes only a few moments for a good 'dillo to cover the 14 metres or so that make a racecourse, and the finishes are often close. Barbecue was in it all the way, but he was second — by a snout — to a speedster by the name of Hill Country Holler No. 7.

And in the Texas Invitational Armadillo Races, second doesn't count for much. Especially in this German-settled part of Texas, where people know the name translates to "Barbecue If I Lose."

Until a few years ago, the armadillo — a docile, burrowing mammal about the size of an overfed house cat and covered with a bony but pliable crescent-shaped shell — was most often seen mashed on the highway.

But the odd-looking creature became the symbol of progressive country music — country influenced by rock — and where the music was popular, suddenly armadillos were popular. For every weekend of the summer, there is an armadillo race in southern or central Texas.

It's all quite informal. Hill Country Holler No. 7's trainers are regulars on the racing circuit, and they had caught the winner — plus Hill Country Holler Nos. 8, 9, 10 and 11 — on Saturday.

"We go out and catch 10 or 11 the day before the race," said Steve Fraunhofer, holding the champion aloft by its tail. "We try to sneak up on them, but that usually doesn't work. So we just chase them down. Then we pick the five feistiest ones, the ones that try to tear out of the sacks.

"If we get a good one, we keep him for maybe two races. They start getting too tame after that. If they don't run good, we either let them go or barbecue and eat 'em," he added.

Training methods differ. The champion had been transported in a customized box, while Barbecue Wennichverlieren arrived in the bottom of a burlap sack after being stabled overnight in a large trashcan.

Go-Getter and Sue came in the arms of their handlers, with Lone Star Beer stickers slapped on their shells.

The racing rules take into account that armadillos rarely run in a straight line. The race starts with the 'dillos facing out from a tight circle, each held by the tail. At the start, they are released into the larger circle that surrounds the small one. The winner is the first one out of the large circle.

Skeleton-Snatching Big Business

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Skeleton-snatching in the northeastern and eastern Indian states of Bihar and West Bengal has become a new way of cashing in on a world-wide boom in the bones trade.

Human skeletons are reported to have been exhumed from graveyards and, in West Bengal's capital city of Calcutta, heads have been severed from bodies in police morgues to be shipped abroad where they are in great demand.

Irked by growing complaints about graveyard vandalism, the Indian commerce department is reported considering imposing a ban on the export of skeletons once again.

India, the world's major exporter, banned the export of skeletons in May 1976 on what was officially described as "grounds of prestige."

But the ban, which caused a world-wide shortage, was lifted a year later.

Exports now are allowed on merit — if the exporter has a certificate from foreign buyers that the skeleton is required for biological and medical studies.

The Times of India alleged recently that Domes, a subcaste of Harijans or Untouchables, dig up corpses and hawk them to agents of skeleton exporters in Calcutta for prices ranging from $3 to $5.

Newspapers report that skeleton exporters collected the bodies of people killed in the devastating cyclone that hit the southern state of Andhra Pradesh last November and during the severe famine in Bihar in 1966.

More than 7,500 people were killed, officials estimate, in the cyclone that battered several coastal districts in Andhra Pradesh. Unofficial estimates put the death toll at twice this figure.

About a week after the disaster, the authorities, finding themselves unable to clear the corpses, called in the army and teams of scavengers from the state capital of Hyderabad to bury and cremate corpses en masse.

Corpses are converted into skeletons in workshops in Calcutta by coating them with thick layer of lime paste to make them decompose. They are then boiled for hours in huge cauldrons and given a peroxide treatment to get the shine on the bones.

The skeleton trade, which is mainly centred in the bustling city of Calcutta, has, according to unofficial estimates, an annual turnover of about $8.2 million.

In the 12 months to April this year, about 47,000 human skeletons and 46,000 other parts were shipped from the Calcutta port.

Two years ago, a skeleton in good condition sold for $190 in Britain. Now it costs about $475. A dental skull, with its teeth intact, costs nearly twice as much as it did in 1974.

In fact, when India lifted the ban, there was a frantic rush to buy skeletons just in case future exports were stopped.

In many countries where religion bars skeletons from being used for medical research, there are bans on selling and buying them.

Dust Swirls at Expense of Clarity

The issue of MLAs and expense money took another twist Monday with a fifth sitting MLA caught in the tangle and a sixth wondering if a trap were set to snare him, too.

Norman Levi (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) applied for and received three days expense money to which he wasn't entitled for work on a legislative committee.

This apparently places him in contravention of the Constitution Act along with Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt, George Kerster (SC—Coquitlam) and Len Bawtree (SC—Shuswap).

Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) says an expense voucher he put in was inflated so he nearly received more money than he was entitled to.

He said he wondered if an attempt was being made to trap him into breaking the same act.

But later investigation showed he was entitled to the expense money under the complex rules and should have received more than he claimed.

During hearings in Victoria in April, Levi claimed for and received his $50 a day rate and $25 daily expense money for a three-day period — a total of $225.

But because of another incident, Levi realized he wasn't entitled to expense money and paid back $75.

However, according to regulations, he also wasn't entitled to the per diem rate.

Veitch was criticized by Opposition MLAs and chided by Speaker Harvey Schroeder for impugning wrongdoing by Levi in raising the issue in the legislature.

Veitch told the house he had written a letter to the attorney-general saying Levi may have contravened the Constitution Act and asking him to look into it.

NDP House Leader Bill King (Revelstoke—Slocan) insisted any implication of wrongdoing be withdrawn because Veitch didn't offer any evidence.

An angry Levi said five minutes before the house sat Monday, Veitch had called him and told him he was sending the letter to the attorney-general, but had made no mention of bringing it up in the house.

It's not yet known if Levi will be included with the earlier four when the committee gets under way to determine if they are sitting illegally.

FIREFIGHTERS TO HANG FIRE

Spokesmen for the Victoria Firefighters' Union said Monday the union will not take any job action in its dispute with the city until after they've met with Labor Minister Allan Williams later this week.

The union held a special membership meeting Sunday to decide on its course of action following a breakdown in contract negotiations with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

However, the union spokesmen would not say what the result of the meeting was.

The union voted April 28 to serve strike notice, and has asked mediator Clark Gilmour to withdraw from the dispute.

The union wants a 5.7 per cent pay increase on a base salary of $1,486 a month, while the city is offering a 5.1 per cent increase.

Sidney Ready To Welcome Captain Cook

There will be a fun fair on the Sanscha grounds, food booths, salmon barbecue, Rotary Club games, rides, a stage show, magic and talent show.

The Kinsmen will run a beer garden; the Kiwanis will organize bingo. There will also be a teen dance, softball tournament and a sunset ceremony by cadets.

Captain Cook will visit Sidney July 2 Sunday, when family activities will be featured. Events will include a mini-parade for children, cricket, croquet and other children's events.

The sailing regatta will also begin Sunday.

An ecumenical service will be held at 6 p.m.

The annual Great Sidney Rowing Review Race is to take place July 3, as well as war canoe races, sky-diving, a regatta dance and, from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Sanscha Hall, a family party and dance.

Museum displays will be shown during the three days as well as a three-day exhibition of arts and crafts.

Organizing the many events are the Sidney Captain Cook Bicentennial Committee, sponsored by the town of Sidney, and the Sidney Days' Committee, sponsored by the Sidney Chamber of Commerce.

Mental Health Study Slated

The health ministry has set up a study under Dr. John Cummings to assess mental health care in the province.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said the study does not imply any dissatisfaction with the present service:

"We merely want to ascertain if shortfalls in the system exist and, if so, where they exist so that any changes or improvements can be made where needed."

Dr. Cummings has been a clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of B.C.

McClelland said there have been a number of recent developments in mental health care and the study will seek to determine if the new advances are useful to B.C.'s mental health system.

VESSELS HUNT MISSING MAN

HALIFAX (CP) — A Canadian destroyer escort and a fisheries patrol vessel reported pea-soup fog today in an area 50 miles south of St. Pierre-Miquelon, where they were looking for one man missing after a ship collision at sea.

The steel trawler Lady Maria out of Sydney, N.S., collided with the Greek bulk carrier Marka L. Monday night and the trawler apparently went to the bottom.

An official of the Canadian Armed Forces search and rescue centre at Halifax said nobody actually saw the trawler sink, but she disappeared from radar screens as 12 of her 13 crew members were being taken aboard the freighter.

DAMAGED SHIPS DRIFT OUT TO SEA

GIBRALTAR (UPI) — An American bulk carrier and an Algerian freighter, locked together following a collision Monday near the strait of Gibraltar, drifted eastward today into the Mediterranean Sea.

Two crew members of the Yellowstone were killed in the accident and three others were missing and presumed dead.

Identities of the dead and injured were not immediately released.

The crew of the Yellowstone, which was carrying a cargo of grain, is American with the exception of two Canadians.

Zaire Denies It's Signing Mercenaries

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — With more troops arriving for the inter-African peace-keeping force, Zaire has denied plans to recruit white mercenaries to boost its military strength and ensure security in troubled Shaba province.

While French and Belgian paratroopers were returning home after rescuing about 2,300 whites from rebel rule in the massacre town of Kolwezi last month, the inter-African force was growing to about 2,000 men.

The backbone of the force, eventually to number about 2,700, was formed by some 1,500 Moroccan soldiers who arrived last week. It was being bolstered by another 200 men of a Moroccan armored brigade, military sources said.

Over the weekend, about 100 Senegalese and 45 Gabonese were reported to have been flown to Lubumbashi, capital of the Shaba province which has been twice the scene of a rebel invasion in the past 15 months.

Diplomatic sources said French transport planes were moving another 135 troops from the Togo capital of Lome to Shaba. Egypt was sending heavy guns and 60 advisors to train the Zairean army in using them.

Zaire, meanwhile, denied British press reports that it was trying to recruit 2,000 white mercenaries in South Africa and Western Europe

95th YEAR, No. 4 ★★★ VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, JUNE 13, 1978 15 CENTS DAILY, 30 CENTS SATURDAY

FARES RISING 13.5%

Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. will raise fares on scheduled runs an average 13.5 per cent on July 15, general manager Jack Thomas said today.

He said this will be the first increase since 1976.

The airport service fare will be raised from $3 to $3.50, parcel express will go up 12.3 per cent and charter service, 12.5 per cent.

He said the new rates will still be less than other transportation services.

As an example, he said, the fare Victoria to Duncan will be $2.90, compared to the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway's $4.15.

And while a Greyhound trip between Vancouver and Seattle costs 7.7 cents per mile, his new fares will be seven cents per mile.

City Eyes Free Buses, . . . If Gov't Will Help

Victoria is considering a free bus service for the downtown area this summer but transportation committee chairman Bill McElroy wants the province to pick up 50 per cent of the cost.

"It will cost about $70,000 to run the service for three months," he said.

"I think this is more than the city can afford."

He said a free bus service between The Bay and the legislature could become the park-and-ride system the provincial government has been advocating for its own employees.

"We could share the system and split the costs."

The bus could be used by shoppers and civil servants could park near The Bay and ride the bus to the legislature.

The proposal has yet to come before council, McElroy said but he said he hopes to see a free bus service in operation by month's end.

At present, there are four options the city can discuss.

They are:

—A free bus jointly financed by the city and the provincial government.

—A subsidy to B.C. Hydro to let shoppers come downtown free from any route during shopping hours.

—Doing nothing.

McElroy said it is unlikely the city will sit back and do nothing because downtown traffic has just about neared the saturation point.

He said the city can handle no more than 200,000 vehicle trips per day and last year it had already reached 185,000.

"It is clear we are at or near the limit and we must either widen the streets or reduce the number of cars."

Expansion of the bus service is the cheaper alternative, he said.

Unfortunately, a free bus service over the Christmas shopping period was unsuccessful.

"The downtown merchants were supposed to handle the advertising," he said.

"They did very little. A service like this has to be well advertised if it's going to work."

Housewife Salary Impossible

OTTAWA (CP) — The government cannot afford to pay every Canadian housewife a salary, even though she does work worth an average of $187.32 for a 49-hour week, concludes a report released Monday.

The report, Five Million Women: A Study of the Canadian Housewife, was presented to the federal Advisory Council on the Status of Women by its author, Monique Proulx, a council researcher.

More study is needed on the whole question of work in the home, says the report. But any formula for payment should take into account family income and whether or not the homemaker has children.

A change in attitudes toward women's role is needed, says the report.

Jobless Remain At Record High

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment rate for May, adjusted for seasonal variations, remained unchanged from the previous two months at a post-1930s high of 8.6 per cent of the work force, Statistics Canada reported today.

This was despite a cutback of 66,000 in the number of unemployed during the month to an actual level of 933,000, the report said.

And in British Columbia, unemployment rose to eight per cent last month from 7.7 per cent in April.

As in the past, Newfoundland had the highest provincial unemployment rate. It had 17.9 per cent of its work force jobless, up from 16.3 per cent in April and the highest rate this year.

But there was an improvement in the other Atlantic provinces.

The number of unemployed peaked at 1,045,000 in March, before falling to 999,000 in April. In May a year ago, there were 824,000 jobless.

The actual jobless rate in May was 8.4 per cent, down from 9.3 per cent in April but well above the 7.7 per cent actual rate in May last year.

The number of people working was up to 10,118,000 last month from 9,752,000 in April. A year ago, there were 9,822,000 working.

Job opportunities for men improved slightly in May, but for women unemployment rates rose. The jobless rate for men aged 15 to 24 eased to 15.8 per cent from 16.1 per cent in April, while for men 25 and over it was unchanged at 5.4 per cent.

But for women in the 15-to-24 age group, unemployment increased to 14.2 per cent in May from 13.4 per cent in the previous month, and for women 25 and over it rose to eight per cent from 7.8 per cent.

Unemployment rates, seasonally adjusted, fell in six provinces in May. But the rates rose in four others, including the industrial provinces of Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec that have the largest provincial work forces, as well as in Newfoundland.

Students seeking temporary work started coming into the work force during May, and the statistics confirm that they face a tough task finding work this summer.

From an estimated student work force in May of 656,000, Statistics Canada says 97,000 who wanted jobs could not find them. That is a 14.8-per-cent unemployment rate, up fro 13.8 per cent among students in May last year.

Today's statistics are the second set of figures released since the federal budget of April 10. It contained an announcement of cuts in provincial retail sales taxes.

BEEF UP 43% IN ONE YEAR

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian consumers this year are paying 43.5 per cent more for beef than a year ago, a monthly survey of retail prices in 12 cities by the federal Anti-Inflation Board shows.

Meanwhile, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture said Monday in its monthly Ontario Farm Price Index that Ontario cattlemen are receiving 50.8 per cent more for their beef than they did a year ago.

The AIB survey said retail beef prices increased by 13.5 per cent in the four weeks before May 19. The farm price index covers prices farmers received until the end of May.

The AIB predicts "further substantial increases" in beef prices during the next few years as the number of cattle available for slaughter continues to decline.

Hotels Welcome Pub Plan

A number of hotel beer parlors are interested in a provincial government suggestion that they convert to pubs in order to remain open during the current beer drought, a spokesman for the B.C. Hotels Association said today.

Executive vice-president Lloyd Manuel said in an interview from Vancouver that the conversion idea is a good one.

He said those that have already switched to pub status allowing them to sell beer as well as hard liquor have had great success.

Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair said Monday that Vic Woodland, general manager of the liquor control and licensing branch is "trying to work on a scheme with some of the hotel beer parlors whereby he would allow them over a period of time, let's say six months or so, to convert to the hotel pub licence

Parents Journey To View Bodies

Times News Services

VILLE MARIE, Que. — Grief—stricken parents journeyed through the night to this Lake Timiskaming resort city today for the task of identifying the bodies of the young victims of a weekend canoeing disaster.

Twelve students aged 12 to 16 years, and a 21-year-old instructor died when a violent storm Sunday sent waves on the wilderness lake crashing onto their canoes. Eighteen others — 15 boys and three teachers — miraculously survived.

Relatives gathered in a small civic centre to greet surviving students and teachers from the school in the Toronto suburb of Claremont that stressed challenging boys to their physical and mental endurance peaks and "a sense of adventure."

The tragedy occurred Sunday after a group of 27 boys, aged between 10 and 15, and four teachers from St. John's School of Ontario began canoeing up Lake Timiskaming, about 370 kilometres northwest of Ottawa. Police said the 18 survivors were found on the western shore of the lake Monday and were in good condition after being treated for shock.

This morning, as the skies cleared and cold winds fanned the lake on the Quebec-Ontario border, police began a helicopter ferry service to bring the victims and survivors from the remote hunting lodge where they were kept overnight.

News of the tragedy came Monday morning after a helicopter pilot on a routine flight over the lake noticed an overturned canoe, with the bodies of a boy and an adult floating tied to it.

Gary Smith, 28, of Trans-Quebec Helicopters then spotted three more bodies and two other overturned canoes through the heavy fog. He got in touch with police, who organized a search party for the survivors.

Police said the expedition set off in four 22-foot cedar canoes, laden with food and baggage, for Moosonee, Ont., about 350 kilometres north of here, near James Bay.

U.S., CANADIAN DOLLARS FALLING

The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows against the Japanese yen in Tokyo today and London Monday, and registered broad losses in other foreign-exchange trading overseas and in New York.

The Canadian dollar also lost more than a quarter of a cent in New York money markets Monday in the wake of the biggest jump in the wholesale price index in more than a year. The dollar closed at 89.06 U.S. cents, down from Friday's final price of 89.33 U.S. cents.

It's a Tiff Over Beauty

What's the difference between an ugly tin shed and an attractive steel-clad building?

That seems to be the lesson in the tiff between Victoria and Transport Canada over the new Canadian Coast Guard base being built on the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

City officials say the plans for the second phase of the project, a 30,000-square-foot warehouse, are not acceptable. And city planning director Geoff Greenhalgh has labelled the building an unattractive tin shed.

Transport Canada official Stephen Rybak, however, responded in a letter to the Times recently, stating: "The warehouse to be constructed is a properly engineered, steel-clad, energy efficient building. It is an enhanced industrial building of a quality and finish superior to that required of the industrial zoning of the site; the finish would, in fact, comply with residential requirements."

Rybak added that the Coast Guard is conscious of the importance of the site, at the entrance to the Inner Harbor, and wants to ensure the base blends into the over-all appearance of the area.

Rybak's arguments have failed to impress Greenhalgh.

He said Monday that Transport Canada has yet to submit any plans meeting approval of the city's advisory design panel.

Steel-clad or not, he said, the Coast Guard warehouse has been rejected by the

MANDARINS GET RAISE

OTTAWA (CP) — The 2,000 highest-ranking federal public servants will immediately get $2,400 across-the-board salary increases, Treasury Board President Robert Andras announced Monday.

The $2,400 increase is the maximum allowed under wage and price controls.

PM Serves Notice

OTTAWA (TNS) — Prime Minister Trudeau has bluntly served notice on Canada's provincial leaders he intends to push through major constitutional changes in areas of "exclusive" federal power with or without their approval. See story on Page 7.

TANKS SPILL OIL

TOKYO (Reuter) — More than 1,000 workers were trying today to prevent oil spilled in Monday's earthquake from spreading down the Pacific coast and causing an environmental disaster.

More than one million gallons of oil spilled into the ocean from giant oil tanks that ruptured during the major earthquake, officials said.

The quake, one of the most serious in Japan since the Second World War, killed 21 people in Sendai, a city 300 kilometres northeast of Tokyo, and injured about 350.

It also caused widespread damage to houses, bridges and roads.

The tremors split open three oil tanks containing 19 million gallons of oil at a beachside storage depot. Most of the oil was trapped behind a restraining wall, but some of it spewed into the sea.

The earthquake cut gas supplies to Sendai and parts of the city were without water.

It's Gold . . and It's Here!

Eureka! It's gold — and smack in the middle of downtown Victoria!

Paint your wagon, sharpen your pickaxe and head for them thar parking lots, civic squares and boulevards to beat the Great Victoria Gold Rush of '78.

It's easy to make fun of anyone claiming to have made a bonanza find in the heart of the city, but to Victoria resident Robert (Bev) Hopton it's no laughing matter.

Amid bizarre echoes of Klondike days, Hoptonwalked into the Times newsroom this morning and announced — apparently in all seriousness — that he has found gold almost within a stone's throw of City Hall.

What's more, he's confident that it's an extremely rich deposit which would yield thousands of dollars' worth of gold per ton of ore, enough to justify the cost of moving buildings if necessary.

Hopton, of 208—1044 Balmoral, a 66-year-old retired logger and mill worker who has been an off-and-on prospector for 40 years, said for obvious reasons he can't identify the exact location but it is on city property.

And he wants to talk to Victoria Mayor Mike Young about the possibility of extracting the yellow stuff, which could make the city enormously wealthy.

He said the area of the find is "hundreds of feet long and wide," although the really rich streak is only about a food wide along a fault line.

According to Hopton, his discovery is gold telluride, a mixture of gold and tellurium. He describes the lat-

Scanners Pinpoint Hot Spots In Forests

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The people responsible for dousing forest fires in B.C. are becoming more sophisticated.

Last year, they began using an infra-red scanner, a heat detection device which can spot a potential fire when there are no telltale or visible signs of trouble.

Now they are experimenting with a lightning detector which can be used to predict fairly accurately where fires will start following a lightning storm.

The scanners are the same kind used in the Vietnam war. Helicopters or planes fly over an area and the detectors find the enemy by recording the heat from their bodies.

They now are used for more humane purposes like detecting fires or searching for missing people.

"They are also good for moose hunting," Hank Doerksen, of the forest service's protection division, says jokingly.

The service has 10 of the scanners — nine hand-held models called Probeyes and another larger model which must be mounted on a helicopter, plane or ground vehicle. It's called an Aga.

The Probeyes, made by the Hughes Aircraft Co., cost $7,000 to $8,000. The Aga, which has a wider range and is manufactured by a Swedish company, costs around $47,000.

Technically, what happens is the scanners convert the levels of infra-red radiation to corresponding levels of visible light. In this way they produce on a small viewing screen a display containing distinguishable temperature patterns of all objects in range.

A 35mm camera can also be attached to the Aga to get prints of the area being scanned.

The instruments are in fact so sensitive that in one instance, recalled by a member of Doerksen's division, a person using the scanner in a plane thought he had picked out a fire.

He went over the area twice but when he landed there was no sign of anything.

The only explanation was that the scanner had picked up the body heat from a deer.

The service tried out the scanners three years ago and then last year bought one for each forest district plus the Aga for general use.

Doerksen said in a recent interview the scanner has worked fine.

"It is not the ultimate, but it is a real good tool," he said.

So far the scanners have picked up about 300 fires smouldering undetected.

Doerksen says it isn't likely all 300 would have erupted into major blazes, but the average cost of a forest fire plus damages is between $4,000 and $8,000, so it is possible the scanners have saved taxpayers somewhere between $1 million and $2 million.

When there is a big fire, crews must be left at the site for as much as a week after the blaze is technically out to make sure the fire doesn't flare up.

But with the scanners, that non-productive use of manpower can be avoided because one sweep with the Probeye determines whether anything is smouldering out of sight.

★ ★ ★

The scanners are also handy in double checking old fires along rights-of-way slashed through the bush, as is being done by B.C. Hydro in the Parksville area.

It is not the latest fires that pose a problem but the earlier ones which the construction crews have assumed are out but are sometimes smouldering beneath the surface.

It is being tried in the Kamloops district and, says Doerksen, "it's coming along very nicely."

The theory is that once you get a detector which accurately records the number of air-to-ground lightning strikes, you can feed that information into a computer which also contains statistics for the number of forest fires started by lightning in the same area under similar weather conditions.

The result should be an accurate prediction of just how many fires are likely to start in a given area following a lightning storm.

Once the forest service has that information, it knows exactly where to send its spotter planes to pick up the fires before they spread.

"We like to think that eventually we will get accurate enough that, given an indication of storm activity, we will be able to predict for a district just how many fires they can expect," says Doerksen.

Return Of Strap Rejected

The closed-door discussion on bringing back corporal punishment was revealed by Trustee John Young who slipped confidential correspondence on the matter to the press.

She also said Young's action had placed the board in the awkward position of making a public statement on an in-camera issue.

Trustees feel the strap doesn't fit in with plans for alternative and special programs being studied by the board, Brice said.

Young, who has previously accused trustees of secretive behavior and given reporters copies of in-camera material, told the meeting corporal punishment is one of many matters placed on in-camera agendas that should be dealt with publicly.

The information he made public was a letter from Education Minister Pat McGeer inviting the board to request a return to the strap as a disciplinary measure.

McGeer said in his letter if the request was made by the district, the government will examine it.

The issue was triggered when a district teacher appealed to McGeer for a return to corporal punishment.

A copy of the teacher's letter was sent to the board by McGeer.

"The writer has made a most eloquent case for the return of discipline to a number of schools in your district," McGeer's letter said.

"Should your board wish to request special permission for use of the strap in Victoria schools I would be pleased to have the matter put before my colleagues in government."

Board To Meet At Sooke

The Capital Regional District board will visit Sooke on Wednesday and attend the official opening of the health and building inspection office at 3 p.m.

The remainder of the afternoon will be spent on tours of the area.

The Sooke Historical Society will entertain the directors at a salmon barbecue, and at 8 p.m. the board will meet in the Sooke Museum.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I would like to know where the money came from for the tomography scanner at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The cost was enormous. If my memory serves me right it was about $26 million. G.B.

A. You are referring to the co-axial tomography scanner which Health Minister Bob McClelland announced Feb. 28 would be located at the RJH. The hospital is now preparing for its installation and hopes it will be installed before the end of the year.

The cost of the equipment and its installation to make it operational is about $1 million. Most of this funding will come from the provincial government and a substantial donation is available from the hospital's auxiliary.

This will be the first total body scanner in British Columbia. The Vancouver General Hospital has a scanner but it covers only the head.

Q. What was the first mineral mined in British Columbia? Y.M.

A. Coal. It was first mined in 1835 on northern Vancouver Island.

$80,000 Damage In Fires

Saanich fire officials are investigating two overnight fires that caused more than $80,000 damage.

Fire Chief Art Fryer estimated the loss at $70,000 in a fire that out at about 5:30 p.m. Monday in a large two-storey home at 1988 Woodley owned by Dr. James Bell.

In the other fire, reported at 1:09 a.m. a garage, greenhouse and two sheds were gutted on adjoining properties at 1714 Jefferson and 4111 Torquay.

Fryer said Bell, his wife and their six children were home when they smelled smoke and discovered fire in the basement. They all got out safely.

The fire spread up a stairwell and into the kitchen before firemen extinguished it.

Fire officials aren't sure how the fire started but believe it may have been something left on a work bench as there was particularly heavy burning in that area.

Fryer said sparks from a smoke house might have started the second fire which gutted a small greenhouse at 1714 Jefferson owned by Salvatore Barone, and destroyed a garage, two sheds and large fir tree at 4111 Torquay, owned by Garry and Joan Moore.

40 FOOD STORES

$4m. Proposal For Reid Site

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

A $4 to $5 million dollar development to house 40 food stores is proposed by the provincial government for the former Reid property on the Inner Harbor below Bastion Square.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, responsible for the provincial capital commission, today told Victoiria council's planning committee the city's support is crucial if the project is to go ahead.

The minister said he will take the scheme to businessmen and if they accept it, the project will be built and operated privately under lease.

Bawlf said the development's success depends on pedestrian traffic drawn to the site through Bastion Square.

"The key is to connect with the closest major retail centre, which is Eaton's," said Bawlf.

"Bastion Square would be the vital link," he said.

To facilitate the flow of pedestrians through the square, he said some major alterations would have to be made.

The committee agreed, and on a motion by Mayor Mike Young, decided to have a consultant report to council within two weeks on how to solve the pedestrian and traffic problems.

Bawlf proposed the square be modified to encourage people to cross over Wharf and enter the new buildings.

Wharf is a major traffic artery and any street level crossing will create difficulties.

Bawlf said the building proposed for the Reid site would be patterned similar to food retail outlets now functioning in the U.S.

"They are not farmers' markets, they are a new creature and are regarded as something of a phenomenon . . . I hope people won't regard this as a pie in the sky," said Bawlf.

He said there would be possibly 40 separate retailers in the building, including grocery stores, delicatessens, fresh fish markets, and ethnic food outlets.

There are about 60 such centres in the U.S., he said, and they are tremendously successful.

Bawlf stressed a number of times he is not proposing an open market concept.

He added that the farmer's market in Seattle, for example, is trying to evolve into the type of facility he is proposing.

Bawlf said he wanted to see construction start in October, with completion possibly by next summer.

He urged the committee to indicate immediately its position on the development.

Bawlf later indicated he was pleased with the decision to seek a consultant's report, and said if the questions regarding pedestrian flow and traffic are resolved in two weeks the timing would be perfect.

Explosives Stolen

A spokesman said the shells, used to drive nails into concrete, are about three-eights of an inch long and look like a .22-calibre bullet.

Police suspect the culprits are juveniles.

"If they start playing around with them and bang them on rocks it could really be dangerous," he said.

So Much for Promises

B.C. Hydro's promise that when it moved to Royal Oak, a downtown office would be maintained for people used to doing business in person, has gone by the boards.

Since May 15, people wanting to pay a Hydro bill have either had to drive three or four miles out of their way, pay by mail or at an authorized station, both of which add to the cost of electricity.

Spokesman Dorothy Tupper now says it was only a possibility Hydro would maintain an office in town, and points out that people who want to pay cash directly are a small minority.

"The largest percentage of our customers pay either by the enclosed, self-addressed envelope, or by pay stations or their bank," Tupper says.

Of the more than 500 plots in the Victoria area, about 45 are still available. And the man in charge of the program, Charlie Carter, head of the ministry's horticulture branch, says it's not too late to plant seeds for a 1978 crop.

Most of the plots are on Gordon Head Road, but there are also some vacant at three other sites — Kenneth Street, west of Glanford Park; Kent Road, off Carey, and Wilkinson Road.

Those eligible include apartment dwellers and residents living in homes where there is no access to suitable arable land.

The beer strike is making for quieter beaches.

In a normal weekend before the current brewery dispute, Saanich police's beach patrol could expect to seize about 30 cases of beer from youths partying on the beaches but last weekend the catch totalled a paltry 13 bottles.

"It was so quiet, you couldn't believe it," one officer said.

Rabbit Run?

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson Monday asked Premier Bill Bennett if he'd had any recent discussions with Volkswagen officials on the possibility of a plant being constructed in B.C.

Gibson says he understands industry sources are suggesting VW will soon build a second North America plant after the success of its operation on the East Coast.

The word is a western location is being suggested and B.C. is on the short list, Gibson told the house.

Twenty-four members of the Red Chevrons, Old Contemptibles and veterans from the Memorial Pavilion and Gorge Road Hospital were entertained at a lively party in the clubrooms of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans on Wharf Street on Saturday.

Also present were Fred Fielding, 94, and Percy Terindale, who was celebrating his 80th birthday.

Having had an operation for a broken Achilles tendon, Nasmyth wore a walking cast that was due to come off in early May. When that day arrived, Nasmyth was half way across the world from Victoria attending a scientific institute in Ustaoset, Norway, miles from the nearest doctor.

But he was just as anxious to have the cast off as he was to avoid spending the better part of a day seeing a local physician.

The Victoria branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers will pay tribute Thursday to Gordon Wright, long-time toiler in the family and children's field of social work.

He was the director of Victoria's Family and Children's Services and left when it became part of the human resources department in 1973.

The local social workers began last year what will be an annual practice of honoring outstanding work by one of their own by giving a special award to Bernice Packford, a social worker with the human resources ministry.

Wright will be honored at the branch's annual dinner Thursday. Guest speaker will be Dr. Frances Ricks, a psychologist in the child care department at the University of Victoria. She is now under contract with the human resources ministry to evaluate all the ministry's programs.
